FDR 'Won't Accept' Oct. 31 Deadline

WILL ACT ON ANTI-STRIKE BILL TODAY

President Gives No Hint as To Whether He'll Sign or Veto Measure.

STEEL INDUSTRY HIT

Blast Furnaces Close as Less Than Half of UMW Miners Return To Work.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt said today that he did not accept the Oct. 31 work deadline set by the policy committee of the United Mine Workers in ordering the recent strike ended.

At the same time, he declined to say whether he will approve the anti-strike bill.

Mr. Roosevelt did say he would act on the anti-strike bill sometime before midnight tonight. When asked whether he would take congress into his confidence before midnight, he avoided the question on the grounds that it was leading.

In reply to a question as to whether he accepted the Oct. 31 deadline posted by the UMW when its policy committee ordered miners back to work under government management this week, Mr. Roosevelt said "no" without qualification. He added that he was trying to mine coal and was going to keep on doing it.

There are some people, he said, who seem to forget that we are at war and that the life of the nation is at stake.

If the coal is not mined, he said, we might be cold next winter.

As President Roosevelt talked to reporters at his press conference, less than half of the UMW's 530,000 hard and soft coal miners had obeyed the union's back-to-work order and blast furnaces were being banked at several of the nation's largest steel plants.

Meanwhile, members of the War Labor Board called on War Mobilization Director James F

CALLS IT FARCE

Rail Engineers Leader Says Wage Hearing Futile.

NEW YORK —(INS)— The head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Engineers charged today that Economic Director Fred M. Vinson already has judged that union's wage demands and added that it would be "a farce to continue" current negotiations.

Addressing a special emergency panel hearing testimony on the demands of five operating brotherhoods for a 30 per cent wage increase, Alvaney Johnston of Cleveland, said his remarks were based on Vinson's recent ruling outlawing an eight cent an hour increase granted by a similar board to non-operating brotherhoods.

"Undoubtedly, the economic stabilization director has already judged our case," he said, "and under these circumstances it would certainly be a farce to continue this proceeding if this be so."

Payment Of Jobless Benefits Decreases $27,000.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported today May jobless benefits were only $109,106, a drop of $27,000 under the previous month, bringing the five-month total since January to $1,015,098, a decrease of $8,000,000 under payments for the corresponding 1942 period.

Administrator Hugh S. Jenkins said the weekly average in Canton was only 15 checks during May. The May, 1942, weekly average was 585 in Canton.

HUNT DESERTION SUSPECT

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Police today searched for a man suspected of desertion from the army, whom they identified as Cyril White, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles White, Grove City, after he eluded them following a 70-mile-an-hour chase through Columbus' south side.

Mercury on Way to New High Mark

The thermometer was expected to reach a new high for the year this afternoon after registering 88 at noon, and the weatherman saw no immediate relief from the heat wave in sight.

Scattered thundershowers were forecast for this afternoon and tonight, but they will bring only temporary relief from the heat blasts which are baking lawns and gardens in the city area, the weatherman said. He added that it may be slightly cooler tonight near Lake Erie.

Yesterday's high of 91 was "cooler" than the 95 marked up in Columbus and Cincinnati's 93. A low of 68 last night kept the 24-hour average at 79.5 degrees, more than 10 degrees above normal.

Mansfielders continued to carry water for their gardens today as the blazing heat wilted tender vegetables and threatened late crops.

MAP FARM AID PLAN TONIGHT

Group To Draw Up Program as Labor Appeal Continues From County Farmers.

While requests for farm labor are pouring into the county farm extension office, sub-committees of the Chamber of Commerce agricultural committee tonight will draw up final details of a program to recruit help for Richland county farmers.

At tonight's meeting the publicity and speakers committees will confer with Reese Mills, agricultural committee chairman, and George B. Ganyard, county extension agent.

General plans for relief of the farmers formulated at an earlier meeting of the chamber committee provide for a recruiting program to work through the county extension office. Ganyard, who will head the recruiting program, has been receiving many calls for help and is best equipped to know the needs of the farmers, committeemen decided.

General appeals for farm labor and surveys among boys and girls of the county for available help having failed, the chamber took over the problem which according to Louis Bromfield, author-farmer member of the committee, is so acute that unless help is found many of the crops cannot be taken in from the fields.

According to Ganyard, young men and women, members of Richland county 4-H clubs, who might be interested, are busy on their own farm homes while city youths have taken defense jobs.

The committee hopes to work out some plan for defense workers to give two or three hours a day when and where they are needed on the farms.

In keeping with the campaign for farm help, members of the Shelby - Better Business Bureau, are establishing a clearing house of their own to aid the farmers of that locality, the committee said.

Masons, Foremen To Forget Heat In Picnic Shade

Members of two Mansfield organizations were going to try to forget the heat late this afternoon at their annual picnics at South Park and Greter's lake west of the city.

Approximately 1,200 persons were expected to attend the Masonic picnic at 5 p. m. at South Park. From 200 to 300 men were being counted on to help make the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club picnic a success at Greter's lake. It was scheduled to get under way at 4 p. m.

Rationing and food shortages were being felt by the picnic menu makers. Vegetable dishes and dairy products will predominate and meat will be scarce.

Softball, card games and horseshoes were on the programs for both parties.

PRESIDENT IN NEW BLAST AT 'FOOD CZAR'

Declares Congress Must Take Full Responsibility If It Creates Position.

CATTLE BUT NO BEEF

Meat Situation Highlights Condition That Brings Attack on OPA.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt today reiterated his opposition to the creation of an all-powerful food czar and said congress would have to bear 100 per cent responsibility if it permits a run-way inflationary spiral to develop.

Describing as a red herring recent demands for the appointment of a powerful food czar with control over the entire food program, the president said the real question before the congress and the people is—are you for inflation or not?

Suppose, he said, that the Angel Gabriel was made a food czar. How, the president continued, could he get the food to the people at present cost?

There are people on Capitol Hill, Mr. Roosevelt said, who advocate taking the brakes off prices so that higher prices will sop up surplus purchasing power.

Congress, he told a press conference, has a perfect right to adopt such an inflationary, out-of-hand system, but if congress wants to do it, 100 per cent of the responsibility will be on the congress.

The president again painted a picture of suffering for persons on relative small, relatively fixed incomes should food prices be allowed to rise. Higher prices, he said, benefit the rich who can pay them and work to the extreme hardships of the poor who cannot.

Asked whether Food Administrator Chester C. Davis had submitted his resignation because he felt his powers were inadequate, Mr. Roosevelt said no. The last word he had had from Davis, he added was that when Davis was

SERVES NOTICE

CIO Chief Asks Subsidies or Scrapping of Wage Formula.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — CIO President Philip Murray served notice on a congressional committee today that unless an effective roll-back and subsidy program are operating by July 15, organized labor would be compelled to demand that the hold-the-line order against inflation and the "Little Steel" wage formula be scrapped.

Murray delivered the ultimatum before a special congressional committee studying consumer problems.

Insisting that congress support the president's price roll-back program, supported by subsidies, he said that labor could not meet increased living costs under present wage ceilings unless congress acted immediately.

LIVING COST UP

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The cost of living is 7.1 per cent more than a year ago, the national industrial conference board reported yesterday on the basis of figures from 62 cities. The increase since Jan. 1941 is 21.2 per cent, the board added.

One Ticket to Midnight Show Buys 200 Cigarets for Yanks

Have you bought your ticket to the cigaret benefit show at the Ohio Theater Wednesday night at 11?

If not, there are six places where you may get them. They are on sale at the Fox Jewelry store, U-Save Market, Tawse's Drug store, City News, Hunt's News Depot and the American Legion home.

Admission price to the late show which will feature local musical and dance talent is 50 cents and each ticket purchased means 200 cigarets for the fighting men overseas.

Contributions to the jars in business places throughout the city amount to more than $900 or enough to buy nearly 400,000 smokes for the Yanks.

One of the many fertile ideas for pushing the American Legion auxiliary — News-Journal drive over its goal for 1,000,000 smokes —is that of the proprietor of Bill's Place. He asked for a larger whiter jar so he could keep an eye on contributors and make sure they were putting in larger change than pennies.

A jar at Sutter's seems to have fared the best of all having been filled to capacity once, emptied and started all over again. Circulated among the employes of Westinghouse, one of the jars collected $63 for the drive.

Jury Hits Jail Conditions Again; Indicts In 19 Cases

Recommendations for extensive improvements at the Richland county jail, some of which were suggested 10 years ago and never carried out, were made yesterday when the grand jury made its regular inspection.

The report submitted by the jury foreman, Arthur S Beck, contained the recommendation that there be new women's quarters and a provision made for suitable accommodations for insane persons.

Also recommended were new juvenile headquarters made possible by an addition to the county jail, and new beds purchased for the inmates. Painting and redecorating of the prisoner's quarters was urged.

The jury earlier returned indictments in 19 cases out of 23 investigated in the two-day session, Wednesday and Thursday.

Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch will hear the pleas of the persons under indictment at 10 a. m. Wednesday. Two of the indictments were sub-rosa.

The jurors examined 46 witnesses. They declined to indict William Blanton of Shelby, charged with operating a motor vehicle without the owners' consent; and Dressed in the tropical uniform of a field marshall, the British monarch immediately alighted from the plane. He entered a waiting auto which carried him to the officers' mess at the airfield.

COUNTY PLANS $3,000,000 IN POST-WAR JOBS

Engineer Outlines Plan For Highway and Bridge Work Throughout Richland.

PROGRAM EXTENSIVE

Sword Submits Projects at Columbus Parley; Huge State Highways Forecast.

A $3,000,000 post-war road and bridge program for Richland county had been suggested today by County Engineer Howard Sword to put the county's highways in condition to handle heavier traffic and provide jobs for hundreds of men during the period of industrial transition after the war.

Sword revealed his plans for the huge construction and repair program at the Ohio Post-War Planning conference yesterday in Columbus which was attended by city and county street and highway officials from throughout the state.

The Richland county engineer listed his suggestions for a post-war program in answering a questionnaire distributed to county engineers by Arthur F. Ranney, Akron, president of the Ohio County Engineers association.

Sword said it would require $962,000 to finance resurfacing of major county roads with bituminous materials and to widen some of the main county routes. The rest of the $3,000,000 expenditure would go into the construction of roads and bridges and repair of those that must be neglected during the war because of the manpower shortage and restrictions on construction materials.

In his reply to Ranney, Sword suggested that the post-war program be handled by a new agency to take the place of WPA and PWA, adding that he didn't want the program handled through the state highway department because he thought "any form of our state government is far more bureaucratic than Washington and a

Wuppertal and Italian Islands Take Blasting

Salonika Raided for First Time as Allied Fliers Pulverize Center Of Chemical Industry In Ruhr; Mussolini Orders Purge.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—A large force of United States heavy bombers, flying without fighter escort, attacked targets of northwest Germany today and 18 of the craft are missing, headquarters of the Eighth Air Force announced.

(By Associated Press)

RAF bombers in great force attacked the German chemical center of Wuppertal in the Ruhr before dawn today, while in the Mediterranean the Allies struck anew at Sicily, Sardinia and Greece.

The British air ministry has defined a "great force" as sufficient to wipe out a city of 200,000 population in a single night.

Blasting their way through stiff Nazi aerial defenses and anti-aircraft fire, the big RAF bleck-buster raiders unloaded hundreds of tons of bombs on such targets as the I. G. Farbenindustries chemical works, the Jaeger roller bearing plants and textile factories. It was the sixth consecutive night attack on the continent.

Meanwhile, a Berlin broadcast quoted Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels as asserting that the Axis was keeping vigil "day and night" to meet an Allied invasion of Europe.

Goebbels boasted, however, that there was "no comparison between fighting in North Africa or for Pantelleria and fighting for Europe."

The German high command, admitting the havoc inflicted by Allied warplanes, said the RAF heaped destruction on Wuppertal and nearby Remscheid, site of important railway shops, and added: "Losses among the populations of the towns attacked are heavy."

Wuppertal is the name for the twin industrial cities of Elberfeld and Barmen on the Wupper river. Wuppertal has 400,000 population.

Upwards of 1,500 tons of explosives were dropped on Barmen in an RAF raid on May 29 which virtually destroyed that sector.

Last night the attack was concentrated on Elberfeld, and an RAF communique announced that "from preliminary reports great damage appears to have been done."

Thirty-three RAF bombers were missing from the night's operations, making a six-day total of 135 Allied bombers lost in the tempestuous campaign to pulverize Adolf Hitler's Ruhr war factories.

In the Mediterranean, U. S. Ninth Air Force Liberators struck for the first time yesterday at the historic Greek port of Salonika from Middle East bases while about 300 American bombers and fighters of the northwest African command battered communications of Sardinia, 700 miles to the west.

Cairo communiques said more than 50 Liberators, attacking in two waves with more than 250,000 pounds of high explosives, scored direct hits on three hangars at the Axis-occupied Sedes airdrome of Salonika, leaving all of them in flames.

ADMITTED: Goebbels Agrees Allies Can Invade Continent

(By International News Service)

LONDON—A virtual admission that Allied troops will succeed in their initial invasion thrust against the European continent was made today by Nazi Propaganda Minister Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, although for obvious reasons he predicted ultimate German victory.

In a broadcast which brought to a climax the recent Nazi campaign emphasizing the grave invasion threat and the devastating effects of Allied aerial bombardments, Goebbels was quoted as saying:

"We are prepared day and night for the eventuality that they (the Allies) will put their threats into practice and we have enough reserves to be able to meet them effectively at any point of our continent after a certain intermediary time."

This phrase "certain intermediary time" was interpreted as clear indication the Germans admit the feasibility of Allied landings and base their hopes on dealing successfully with invasion forces after a beachhead has been established.

Goebbels told the German people quite bluntly that Great Britain and the United States are massing for attacks upon the continent and added: "The only question is when and where."

The propaganda minister said there is no comparison between the fighting in North Africa and Pantelleria and the battle that will develop with invasion of Europe.

"If forces encounter one another in practically the same

GREEN: Bomber Loss Blamed Partly on Lack of Training

(By United Press)

LONDON—Failure to send American veterans back to the United States to train green crews is believed by experts to account in part for increased losses in recent operations.

This failure—which is being rectified—resulted in new crews coming to Europe with no practical knowledge of the tricks of battling the Luftwaffe, which the pioneer American airmen learned the hard way last fall.

Meanwhile, the Germans learned how to attack the big bombers. Our green crews thus must pit their theoretical training against seasoned enemy veterans of daylight combat and learn for themselves, instead of being taught before hand by battle-wise comrades.

The main reason, of course, for higher losses is increased German fighter and ground opposition. The Germans have been frantically reinforcing all western Europe with more fighters and more anti-aircraft batteries. Whenever they go over the continent they find stiff opposition.

The recent losses have given rise to speculation that the Nazis have found some new "secret weapon"—a rocket gun, for instance—which is the "answer" to the Flying Fortress. Returning crew members, however, report no difference in the type of flak —"just more of it."

This is not meant to be a discouraging picture, however. Indications still grow that Goering must be sweating trying to stretch his limited resources over the whole of Europe and trying to outguess the RAF and USAAF.

But it is to the credit of the American air forces that they have seen and admitted their mistake and every day experienced men who have finished their full operational tour of duty are going home to teach the new crews how to do it.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

LONDON—(By Wireless)—Recent temperamental antics of General De Gaulle have had a depressing effect here, as they must have had in Washington, because the duel of prima donnas at Algiers warns us of the difficulties that will be involved in the restoration of France.

Perhaps it is not going to be possible to work out in advance. Perhaps we will have to wait for new leaders to rise from the soil of France. The appalling fact is that, in some areas, leadership material is running very thin. You can see it in Britain. The Labor party has just repudiated its best leader, Herbert Morrison, for the antiquated Arthus Greenwood, in a grudge fight. The Labor party has almost no leadership material outside of Morrison. Younger men have been snuffed out by the practice of putting retired trade-union officials, aged and broken down, into parliament as Labor party members. The same dearth of good leadership shows in the French situation. It is of vital importance that a strong France be reconstituted. Britain must have the bulwark of a friendly France on the continent. That is Britain's forward zone. She could not possibly afford to risk a hostile France across the channel. That accounts for the British promptness in picking up De Gaulle and building him up as the leader of the Free French.

Clapper

While all acknowledge that De Gaulle more than anyone else outside of France represents the flaming spirit of Free France, he certainly is a cantankerous customer to handle. As has been often said, patriotism alone is not enough. De Gaulle symbolizes the France that must come to life again, but if he is going to have a part in the process he must work with others, which thus far he has shown no capacity for doing.

If it were possible to turn to other leaders who are coming along, to bring up some one else, it would be wise to do so. De Gaulle has made so many enemies, has so irritated his best friends, that it is questionable whether he could swing the job now even if his every whim had been granted. He and Giraud seem to have succeeded chiefly in cancelling each other out of the real task of leading France after the defeat of Germany.

Meantime, the chief hope lies not in prima donnas but in such practical and skillful negotiators as Jean Monnet, who has the confidence of the British as well as of the Americans. When he was in Washington, as a member of the French purchasing mission and later with the British supply council, Monnet won the confidence of Americans and had the respect and confidence of the White House to a degree that makes him far more useful than figures who live more in the spotlight.

Perhaps the best bet would be to lean on such good administrators as Monnet to carry on the hard work of holding French affairs together until Germany is defeated and the people of France can have an opportunity to indicate their wishes. It would probably be better, instead of trying to have a national leader like De Gaulle, to lean on able second-layer men for the time being. De Gaulle threatened to go away sulking to Brazzaville if his every demand was not met, and perhaps it would be better if he were allowed to do so.

That, as well as the plight of the Labor party in Britain, and perhaps the state of American politics, especially on the Democratic side, suggests that the problem of new leadership is common now to all the democracies. Dictatorships frankly rest on the leadership of one man. Democracies must have a flow of leaders, new shoots coming up.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—There is still considerable localized indignation in Washington, in the west and some elements of our press over the treatment of our three classes of interned or relocated Japanese civilians, the complaint being that they are overfed and otherwise pampered but on the basis of personal observation at one of the principal detention areas, at Sacaton, Ariz., I have to insist that either this isn't so or the civilians in charge of the place managed to hide the cookie jar before I arrived. The food at Sacaton was about the same that the civilians were getting, there was no general ration of milk as the civilians had been led to think there was, the Japs were getting margarine instead of butter and the ration points were the same that are allowed "institutions" under the rationing program, an "institution" being a poorhouse, orphanage, jailhouse or the White House.

Pegler

I can understand anyone's dissatisfaction with the program, however, including that of the internees or relocatees because the administration is a stick mess that should be turned over to the army for efficient handling and the bad Japs should be detained and treated with austerity and the good ones released for their own good as well as ours.

As to law and the constitution and racial discrimination we are caught in a jam because race alone is the basis of selection of these people and the natives among them; even the disloyal natives of the United States, are American citizens, whether we like it or not. If we don't release the loyal native Americans soon their loyalty is likely to rot because they feel that we are doing them wrong and the bad actors taunt them about the treatment they are receiving from this great democracy in the midst of the fight for the four freedoms everywhere in the world.

Under the administration of a civilian organization quickly thrown together and directed by people of just the stripe that the New Deal would select to run community life, there is no check on firearms, maps, liquor or radio or photographic materials coming into the camps and that, of course, is bad. Lieutenant General De Witt was the one who forbade the MP companies guarding the camps from the outside to frisk express or mail parcels or letters or cars entering the camps, the latter on special permit in each case, but that would seem to have been done under high orders because the general is strictly military and undoubtedly would enforce military precautions if he had his way.

There has been some joy-riding in stolen camp trucks in the camp areas and for my authority on that I cite the Sacaton camp newspaper, a mimeograph publication, which acknowledges this and urges the inmates to cut this out lest all hands suffer loss of privileges for the sins of the few. But an efficient camp management would check the fuel to the very drop, keep the ignition keys in custody and check the mission of each truck leaving the area.

It is just possible that, after the initial alarm and the danger of the emergency had passed, we could have permitted the Japs of all classes to remain where they were or anyway to remain on their farms to produce food the lack of which is now an aggravation of one of our handsomest problems. For a man from Honolulu, a reputable, mainland American, whom I met under good auspices in San Francisco recently, told me that although they had about 150,000 Japs in the Hawaiian islands there had been no trouble with them since Pearl Harbor.

There was nothing to do but leave them in the islands, said he, because we wouldn't spare the shipping to send them to the mainland, couldn't find the manpower and shipping to replace them with Caucasian or Negro Americans from the states, and couldn't get along without their labor right where they were. So we left them where they were and up to now have made a go of it.

I don't know how anyone determines whether a Jap of American birth is loyal to the United States but those who never saw Japan are generally supposed to be the best for our purposes and almost all the others are deeply suspected. However, I might mention, if only to heighten the confusion, that Mr. Waring, the commander of the American Legion recently showed me correspondence with the FBI which says the FBI does not investigate applicants for release but only provides data on individuals with police records.

This contradicts what I was told by the superintendent at Sacaton and tends to confirm my opinion that we are running this interesting and important activity like a Hyde Park wienie roast.

Please Help Me!

(Being excerpts from a comedian's autobiography, written by Henny Youngman after reading "So Help Me" by George Jessel, who also tells jokes. "Please Help Me" will soon be on sale at all drug stores and railroad stations, with a foreword by William Saroyan, for $2.50. Without a foreword by Saroyan, it costs $5.)

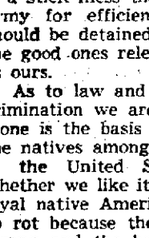
I WAS born in a little house in Brooklyn (see glossary). As soon as I was born, I looked around and said "So this is where I came in!" The doctor laughed so hard he dropped me out the window.

I was named after Sir Henny Youngman the famous English bookie, Count Henry von Jungmann, Princess Henrietta Youngman and J. J. Shubert. I was a very handsome little doppelganger (see glossary) and people used to come from all over Brooklyn to marvel at my curly blond hair, my bright blue eyes and my two heads.



Kilgallen

I made my theatrical debut at the age of five, when I was stolen from my crib by Gus Edwards. I joined the "School Days" revue, appearing with George Jessel, Eddie Cantor, Walter Winchell, George Jessel, Milton Berle, Fanne Brice, Ethel Barrymore and George Jessel. I started singing in the chorus, but soon I was elevated to stardom and sang, danced, told jokes, did imitations, led the band and sold orangeade in the lobby. I don't like to boast, but the drama critic of the Keokuk Times-Star wrote that I was the "world's thinnest comedian."

My first grande passion (see glossary) occurred when I was six years old. She was a lovely, golden-haired girl named Fifi LaRue who was sawed in half twice a day on the Pantages time, and she couldn't have been more than 42 years old when we first met. I knew it was the real thing because, one afternoon when my mother was bathing me in our dressing room, Fifi handed me a paper towel as I stepped out of the sink. I didn't see her again for 25 years, but I sent her orchids every day, anyway, and a diamond brooch on Sundays.

By the time I was 12 I was headlining at the Palace, starring simultaneously in three hit shows, writing two plays, a novel and a five-act tragedy in blank verse, and nightly appearing at 14 benefits. Also I was madly in love with Broadway Rose, then at the peak of her career as a movie star. She was doing personal appearances in Buenos Aires and I was working in New York, but I used to visit her every other day, making the trip back and forth in a scooter borrowed from Vincent Astor.

I was making about nine million dollars a week, which is a lot of money (see glossary), but spending every cent of it on diamonds, sable coats, limousines and jelly beans. Things looked dark for a while, until I came on the script of a play about a young, religious boy who gives up his calling to open a zoot-suit shop in Los Angeles. It was called "The Hep Cantor" and ran for 12 years. Flushed with success, I got married and divorced five times within a few months, and decided finally to accept the Hollywood offers which had been following me since my bar mitzvah (see glossary).

95TH ASSEMBLY GOES HOME FOR THE LAST TIME

112 Bills Signed Yesterday, Members Named To Six Commissions.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—The 95th Ohio General Assembly, barring call of a special session by Governor Bricker, has gone home for good.

The senate adjourned sine die yesterday afternoon and the house followed several hours later, completing a 25-week session.

The legislature which met Jan. 4 stayed in the capitol longer than most in recent years despite early hopes its program would be streamlined to war needs, with an early adjournment.

The 94th assembly quit formally May 17, 1941, and the 93rd, June 27, 1939.

Yesterday's business comprised signing of 12 bills by House Speaker William M. McCulloch and Senate President Pro-tem Frank E. Whittemore; adoption of resolutions to provide for interim personnel of the legislative chambers; appointment of commissions to study special state problems and report to the next legislature which will convene in January, 1945; acceptance of the governor's veto of a bill which would have authorized public officials to sell fire insurance to public agencies; and formal adjournment.

Bills signed included those to revise the state unemployment compensation law to impose wartime surtaxes on war-boomed state industries; to create a post-war planning commission and a commission to study problems of small business; to increase salaries of county engineers; and the $369,000,000 general appropriation and $262,000 sundry claims bills.

Legislative members were named to commissions for post-war planning, highway recodification state salary revision, administrative law, school survey, and small business.

The house adopted a resolution of regret at the serious illness of Rep. Frank I. Giffin, R., Morrow, confined in a Columbus hospital.

Sen. O. W. Whitney, R., Delaware, ill during the entire session, made his first appearance in the senate chambers yesterday, for the final day of the session.

HINTS GROWING BRICKER TO RUN

Spokesman Says State GOP To Give Him Formal Backing Within 6 Weeks.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Gov. John W. Bricker still isn't saying whether he will seek the Republican nomination for president but indications he would be a candidate mounted today.

An administration spokesman who requested anonymity said the Republican state committee would meet "within six weeks to endorse Bricker formally" for president.

The report served to emphasize the governor's observation to an interviewer he might speak out on national and international questions this fall and winter in a series of addresses.

The governor left last night for Milwaukee to address a meeting of the Winconsin Bar association amid indications he would be more specific in his advocacy of United States participation in post-war world readjustment.

Before departing for Milwaukee, the governor reiterated that Ohio "may support him as its favorite son at the party's 1944 convention." He explained that an Ohioan has until 60 days before the May primary to consent to primary filing of a delegate slate pledged to him. Such consent is required in the state.

Bricker in his interview committed himself unmistakably for American participation in an international organization to preserve peace once the war is won.

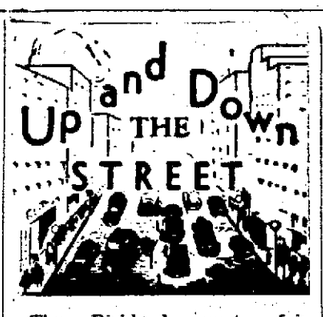
Up and Down THE STREET



The Richland county fair, scheduled for Sept. 16, will be one of the 16 that will be resumed in Ohio this year after a year's lay-off. Seventy-six fairs will be conducted in the state as compared with only 60 last year, it was revealed today at the Ohio Fair Managers association meeting in Columbus. A one-day show this year, the Richland county fair will be devoted largely to youth activities. Fairs will give the people a place to go for entertainment close to home and help promote the food-for-victory program, said N. E. Stuckey, president of the Ohio Fair Managers.

June, the month of roses and brides, is important in this story of a bride and a rose bush that have lasted out the years. On June 14, 1894 Miss Harriett Ruth Sharp of Waterford village, Middlebury township, Knox county picked a bouquet of cream white roses from a bush growing in the yard of William Henry Turvey whose bride she became that day. On June 14, 1943, just 49 years later, she picked another bouquet of roses from the same bush.

Employes of the Richland county offices in the courthouse may complain of the heat, but perhaps they fail to realize the building is one of the coolest spots in the downtown area. Attorneys and others who do business there daily will vouch for the cooling air which greets them when entering the old structure.

It's only human nature to want to look one's best and impress someone, so it's not surprising that prisoners at the Richland county jail, felt it most important yesterday to be well groomed when grand jury members made their regular inspection. Requests were made for several days previously for hair oil, shaving equipment and other articles for "sprucing up."

ATTACKS USE TAX ON AUTOS

Sen. Mead Wants Enforcement Held Up In East Where Ban's on Driving.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Senator Mead (D.-N.Y.) today labeled the annual $5 use tax on automobiles a "pay-as-you-don't-go-plan," at least for eastern motorists, and said he would ask the treasury to withhold enforcement until congress decides whether the levy should be repealed.

The new stickers are supposed to be on the wildshields of all cars and trucks operated after next Wednesday, but the postal employes entrusted with their sale have decided that the only way to start them moving would be to ration them, like shoes. In other words, business has not been good.

Several eastern lawmakers agreed with Mead that taxation without transportation is going to be pretty hard to explain to their foot weary constituents. The value of gasoline ration coupons is smaller in the east than in other parts of the country, and in the seaboard states from Virginia north all pleasure driving is forbidden.

"It looks like a faulty proposition to me," Mead told an interviewer. "It's incongruous. On one hand we're asking people not to use their automobiles, while on the other hand we're taxing their use."

Senator Brewster (R.-Me.) called the tax "unjust and unfair" under present conditions and said it was arousing sectional ill-feelings.

ORDERS CORN STOCKS SEIZED IN ELEVATORS

WFA Instructs Attorneys To Requisition Grain For Processors.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The war food administration has wired orders to U. S. district attorneys to take necessary steps to requisition elevator stocks of corn in 15 principal terminal markets for use by processors making essential war products.

Formal announcement was expected to be issued later today after the attorneys had been given opportunity to serve papers on the affected elevators.

Requisition of such corn was decided upon after the WFA received complaints that persons owning grain were holding it for higher prices while many processing plants had been forced to close down because of their inability to purchase corn at the government's ceiling price.

The WFA will pay the ceiling price of $1.07 a bushel, Chicago basis, for the requisitioned corn. The grain will be resold to processors at the same price.

Corn supplies secured by requisitioning elevator stocks are expected to be relatively small, official estimates placing the quantity in affected elevators at barely sufficient to supply processors for approximately two weeks.

Under consideration is a plan by which farmers would be paid a subsidy above the ceiling price for selling corn for use by processors.

The action reflects a growing tight supply situation in corn and other livestock feeds. These products have been dwindling under the impact of a record number of livestock.

There has been a tendency on the part of corn farmers to hold the grain on the farm to meet their own livestock requirements. They have been encouraged to follow this course by the fact they can get a considerably greater return by feeding corn to hogs than by selling the grain as such. Estimates have been made by various sources that corn fed to hogs brings from 25 to 50 cents a bushel more than the ceiling price on corn.

BILLS GO OUT

Tax Statements To Be Placed In Mails Next Week.

Mansfielders and residents of Richland county will receive their tax statements for collections of the last half of 1942 early next week, Charles C. Payne, county treasurer, said today.

The current June charge amounts to $728,754.89, which is $3,303.12 higher than a year ago. According to Payne this is due to the four tenths mill increase in rate in the city during the past year. Delinquent at the present time is $101,529.14, which is considerably lower than last year for this period. The delinquent amount for last June totaled $153,547.56.

First day of payment will be Thursday, July 1, and the final date, Aug. 20.

HEALTH FOR VICTORY MEMBERS HAVE MEET

"Entertaining In Wartime" Was Topic Used By Mrs. Julia Kiene at Thursday Meeting; Refreshments Served.

"STANDING ROOM ONLY" is what happened at Thursday's meeting of the Health for Victory club at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, when Mrs. Julia Kiene met with club members to help them plan summer outdoor picnics in wartime.

Those who had to stand, however, didn't seem particularly unhappy about it. They knew it was only because the Westinghouse was "in a dither" making preparations for the ceremony in the near future when it will receive the Army-Navy E award. So, although the meeting was just a bit irregular, housewives received a few good ideas on summer entertaining.

"Just because we are in a war," Mrs. Kiene said, "is no reason to stop entertaining." She made her audience realize that entertaining, if not done on an elaborate scale, can be a form of relaxation and who would deny a war worker, ship builder or busy housewife the opportunity for that, after a tiring day—or night?

Mrs. Kiene brought up the question of ration points. She told how to plan parties using the least amount of points. She also gave menus in which she told the total amount of points used.

After the home economist's talk, members of the club milled about tables set up in the middle of the auditorium demonstrating summer meals. Answers to questions were given by members of Mrs. Kiene's department. They were the Misses Charlotte and Lois Ferris and Marcella Liebeck.

Late in the afternoon, when refreshments were served at long tables attractively decorated with floral arrangements at either end and tall white tapers in two branched candelabra, presiding hostesses were Mrs James Anderson, Mrs Will Snyder, Mrs. George Zacharisen, Mrs. Robert Cook and Mrs Fred Lehr.

Hostesses were assisted by Mrs Marion Yerigan, Mrs. E. J. Hegarty, Mrs. Robert Cummins, Mrs William Hahn, Mrs. Hilbert Edwards, Mrs. Lee Boyd, Mrs. Dawson Maxwell, Mrs. Henry Sunderman, Mrs Lester Bose, Mrs Martin Biddle, Mrs Charles Myers and Mrs Peter Brandt.

Y.W.C.A. Plans Aid For Girls In War Plants

OMAHA, Neb.—(INS)—A "staggered hours" program for the benefit of girl and women war workers, "swing shift dances" and a nationwide farm women's program are slated for early attention by the Y. W. C. A., Mrs Grace Loucks Elliott of New York, national president of the organization, revealed in Omaha recently.

Mrs. Elliott said such innovations, although somewhat in conflict with the traditional conservatism of the association, were being contemplated as part of a program to aid in the war and post-war problems

"Women are becoming more and more important in industry, with men being taken into the services, and unless something is done to help them retain their conventional outlook on life, we will have a topsy-turvy world after the war," Mrs. Elliott explained.

"We know that many of the women now employed in industry, at good wages, may not desire to return to their homes after the men return from the war. We must do all in our power to help them keep a normal attitude toward their existence. One of the ways we can help is by providing more educational, religious and recreational facilities."

Meet One-Dress Wally, Royal Economist

By DOROTHY ROE
(AP Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK — The Duchess of Windsor may now add to her title of "best-dressed woman" the subhead "One-Dress Wally."

During her recent visit to New York, the Maryland girl for whom a king gave up his throne made several public appearances in what seemed to be a succession of different costumes, all sleek, soignee and sophisticated.

On close scrutiny, however, the varied costumes turned out to be all one dress, with different accessories.

The basic dress, which is Mainbocher's answer to the problems of wartime economy and possible clothes rationing, is a slim black silk crepe with high round neckline, short sleeves and a zipper down the back—the unadorned ultimate in clothes simplicity.

The Duchess, who knows her clothesline, made a bee-line for her favorite couturier on her arrival in New York, and snapped up the basic dress, which had been fitted beforehand to the dressmaker's model of her figure in the salon. Thereafter she appeared in four versions of the costume, and undoubtedly has further changes tucked handily away in her trunk.

To the circus the Duchess wore the basic dress as is, without adornment

To the reception for the Bolivian president and the tea at the Women's Military Services club she wore it garnished with a black capelet scarf and a "glamor belt" bedecked with a huge corsage of mixed artificial flowers.

For luncheon at a smart Park avenue restaurant she wore the informal accessories—a red and white print scarf with belt and gloves to match

For an informal dinner she wore a second "glamor belt" which is made in the form of a brief apron of black crepe and net alternately banded in vertical stripes

With such a wardrobe Wally will no longer need a dozen trunks, and will prove that she can budget as any good wife does when her husband announces, as did the Duke.

"We haven't many dollars."

Tells of Plea From Invalid Soldiers

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

It was my privilege the other day to have lunch with four men who had their baptism of fire in North Africa, Europe, Guadalcanal and New Guinea.

They are in Washington to be rehabilitated for self-supporting civilian life. Although they confessed regretfully that they'd all like to go back and fight it out, soldiering was no longer possible for them. All were wearing the Order of the Purple Heart and one, John Larson, Private First Class, was wearing the Silver Star for gallantry in action.

One could not help being impressed with the modesty of these men—the almost belittling understatement with which they referred to their accomplishments.

"It was just a job that had to be done, and I happened to be there and handy. The mistake I made was that I zigged when I should have zagged, so I got it," said Private Larson. What he actually did was to precede his company, drawing the fire of the enemy, so his comrades could get the range.

Corporal Murray Salkins, who was blinded and lost part of his jaw as one of the Pioneers in the raid on Dieppe, did not wish to talk about the explosion which cause his wounds.

Private Hardie Robbins, of San Francisco, lost one hand and injured the other in Africa.

Private Morris Umans, 25, who lost a leg at Guadalcanal was the fourth of the group.

As a group they asked us to "tell people, through your various papers, not to ask us personal questions about our physical handicaps. In buses, on street corners, well-meaning people have come up to us, asked where it happened, how we got hurt, if it would ever be possible for us to return to combat duty, and how we felt about it all. If these people are doing that sort of questioning out of patriotism, let them express their patriotism some other way — by buying bonds. It's bad mental hygiene for the wounded and for the questioners as well."

The men said some interesting things about the difference between German and Japanese fighters. "The Germans are good soldiers, but the Japs are fanatics, they want to die fighting, chiefly in hand-to-hand combat with bayonets. They're more fanatical than brave. They just don't seem to care. The Germans give up rather than fight against odds.

"The American soldier will take chances—when he has to—but he knows a dead soldier isn't a good soldier, and he tries his best to keep on living."

Good Dishes For Meatless Dinner

By BETSY NEWMAN

For that meatless dinner there are so many good dishes—some made of cheese, some of vegetables. Of course at this time of year creamed or buttered asparagus on toast takes the place of the meat dish in many families. You can add cheese to that if you wish, but generally speaking, I don't like to mask the taste of the asparagus with any other strongly flavored food.

Today's Menu.

Vegetable Casserole
or Buttered Asparagus on Toast
Paprika Potatoes
Tossed Green Salad
Orange Rhubarb Pudding Tea

Vegetable Casserole.

1½ cups sliced cooked carrots
1½ cups diced raw celery
½ cup sliced onions
1 cup cooked peas or any cooked vegetables
½ tsp salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
2 cups medium cream sauce
1 cup ready-to-eat cereal
½ cup shredded cheese

Mix vegetables, salt and pepper and alternate layers of vegetables and cream sauce in casserole. Crush cereal into fine crumbs Sprinkle cheese over vegetables and top with ready-to-eat cereal crumbs. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes or until browned Serves 6

Orange-Rhubarb Pudding.

2 cups flour
3 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp salt
3 tbsps. shortening
¾ cup milk
2 cups diced rhubarb
1 cup orange juice
½ cup sugar

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt, cut in shortening, add milk, mixing to make a smooth dough Combine rhubarb, orange juice and sugar and heat to boiling, put in large baking dish Drop dough by spoonfuls on orange mixture and bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) 35 to 40 minutes Serve hot. Sufficient for from 4 to 6.

Counting up the hand to see how many positive tricks are in sight and then picking out the surest way to build the extras you need is the basic formula. When you then carry on in that manner, making the sound plays for your contract, you will often find that extra tricks are produced in the natural course of events.

Figuring out how a declarer could get himself set at that contract would be quite a puzzle in itself, after West led the heart 3. This declarer did it, however, almost entirely on his own and with the aid of only one bright play by a defender. In the East was Tobias Stone, one of the most brilliant of the new crop of national champion holders When dummy played low on the heart 3, he felt sure from the bidding that South had the K, so stuck in the 8, which forced the K.

Feeling sure of the heart finesse now, South tried it, but the Q took his 10 Mr Stone returned the diamond 6, and the J finesse lost to the Q The heart 9 was returned to the J, the club 9, 5 and K played, then the club J finessed to the Q. That gave the defenders their third trick, and a spade return to the K and A set the contract.

If declarer had counted at the start, he would have seen that putting the heart 10 on the first trick would have assured three tricks in that suit, and left him with all suits doubly stopped. He then should have led spades until the K and A were out, whereupon he would have had nine tricks positively in sight. Running those tricks would have dropped both of Mr. Stone's queens and consequently would have produced two extra tricks.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky looked from my flushed face to Katharine's mischievous one, and a light of unholy glee, all too familiar to me, came into his eyes

"Aha!" he said 'I smell the plot thickening, also two, three maybe five mices Come clean, Katrina, tell Papa the joke He needs one'"

But Katharine shook her head obstinately

"The party tomorrow has nothing to do with me," she said "It's Olina's, and the Wilderness Woman's—the chief thinks she's the impersonator, as he believes Steve Redfield to be the forger of the note I have no part in it whatever."

"But Madge has," Dicky said, "else there'd be no reason for that crack you just made"

"Madge will tell you," Katharine said decisively, while behind Dicky's back, I shook my fist at her, and threatened dire things with frowning brows

Then I straightened my brows and dropped my hand just in time to present a comparatively unruffled front to Dicky as he swung round facing me

Madge Must Confess.

"And, now, little lass with laughter on your lips," he paraphrased, "I'm ready to hear your confession You've got one, I can see What are you keeping from me?"

"Nothing of any importance," I said, carefully making my voice as casual as I could. "It's simply that Father wants me to be near Olina every minute of the time that she's in that upper corridor Of course Ruth Hayes knows me, and—"

My voice trailed away, and Dicky slapped his knee.

"And that means Dad has decreed that you must be in evidence, yet disguised," he guessed "What's your role going to be, a cigarette girl, or an elevator operator?"

"Nothing so romantic," I told him

"No, neither of those would do," he agreed, then added with dancing eyes· "There's only one thing left. Don't tell me you're going to be a chambermaid!"

"Go to the head of the class!" I ordered with far more bravado than I felt, for he was looking at me with dancing eyes in which there was mischief which I knew would find an outlet.

"Do you know, I think you'd make a very goodlooking chambermaid," he said "With a perky little cap atop your still lustrous locks, and an apron to match tied around your shapely figger, you'd have your points, my girl. I might even make a magazine cover of you. What do you say, Katrina?"

"Before he goes into any more rhapsodies, Madge," Katharine advised dryly "you'd better tell him what Dad has planned for you."

"And what I'll do to you when I get a good chance!" I threatened darkly. Then I turned resolutely to Dicky

"If I were Mary, I'd tell you to go ahead and laugh your fool head off!" I said tartly "Now here's the great secret Dad is going to have me take a room at the hotel tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock, and Halloran is coming over to transform me into a drab, stooped, gray-haired woman, so nondescript that nobody will give her a second glance"

I eyed him defiantly, but his reaction to my news was exactly what I had expected With a whoop of laughter, he sprang to his feet, and then collapsed into his chair again, doubled up with mirth

Laughs At Her.

"If you could have seen your face, "when you were describing your role," he chortled, and then went off into another paroxysm of laughter

"You know, I think I'll go down to that hotel tomorrow," he said, "and take a room on that floor Then I'll stand at the door, and yell 'Maid!' every five minutes Will I keep you on the run! It'll be the first chance I've ever had since we were married to get you on that 'obey' clause you bribed the minister to leave out of the service"

"Dicky," I protested indignantly, "I didn't!" Then he realized too late that once more he had 'got a rise" out of me

"Of course you did," he declared "but of course you'd never own up to it. However, I blackmailed the preacher, and he confessed. I've been waiting to get even ever since And now, me proud beauty, you are at my mercy!"

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

"What ever happened to that Dale Haverstock up at Canton McKinley?" Coach Paul Snyder of the Mansfield high school gridiron Tygers quizzed me on Wednesday last.

"It is strange that you ask me that question today," I told the Tyger tutor, "because Haverstock left just yesterday for the navy.

"And here is more news that should bring you joy, and not entirely from a patriotic viewpoint. Bob Hall, the Canton McKinley guard, also left yesterday for the navy."

Haverstock, football and basketball star, and Hall, regarded by Canton sport scribes as one of the best football linemen in that district, would have been eligible for another year of scholastic competition if they had missed the boat on their call to the navy.

Joining them on their trip to Great Lakes were three graduated McKinley athletic stars of the past year: Vic Wernet, Abe Aslanides and Steve Kosmides.

Yes, I understand Coach Snyder is in favor of a two-ocean navy.

Here's news of that Mansfield all-around athletic star Bob Winbigler, who shines equally in baseball, football and basketball, and does well enough in track togs.

Windy was pretty much dejected this spring when he failed to make the grade in the Army Air Force. Since then he's been serving in a tank outfit at Camp Oglethorpe, Ga.

But a good Tyger never gives up, and Windy was ever a good Tyger. Comes word that he has taken another examination for the air corps, and passed.

Mansfield fistic fans of 10 years back will remember Paul Rockwell, hard-hitting Mt. Vernon lightweight, who performed in Mansfield rings on numerous occasions. Rocky looked like he had the stuff to go places in the fight racket, but he would just as soon fight for free in an alley as for pay in the ring, and was continually breaking up his hands.

Rockwell was Mt. Vernon's first serious naval war injury casualty, badly wounded in the battle of Midway.

Rocky, the fight fans will be glad to learn, is still fighting—fighting for a chance to walk again.

Ernie Cope in his Sports Scope column in the San Francisco Call-Bulletin recently had this to say about Rockwell:

This Rockwell is a good example of the American intestinal fortitude that brings 'em back alive. His spine was severed in the battle of Midway last June. He also lost two fingers of his right hand and considerable of his scalp and took on a miscellaneous cargo of shrapnel. Even after they brought him back, the doctors told him he would never walk again.

"What do I have to do to convince you I will walk?" he asked.

"First you'd have to wiggle your toes," he was told.

Two days later he wiggled his toes. After many months he's now on crutches, the hero of convalescents, and the dispenser of cheer, fun and frolic every hour he's awake at the Mare Island Naval hospital.

Tri-State Tennis In Semi-Finals

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The 42nd annual Tri-State Tennis tournament gets down to serious business today, with one semi-finals and one quarter-finals match on tap in the men's singles.

Top-seeded Billy Talbert meets Chalmers Ratliff, a fellow Cincinnatian, in the semi-finals, while Seymour Greenberg of Chicago, who has been ill, takes on James Ratliff of Cincinnati in the quarter.

Talbert beat Klein of Cincinnati, 6-1, 6-0, yesterday and Chalmers Ratliff eliminated Larry Tinker of Cincinnati, 6-2, 6-1.

In the women's singles quarter-finals, Catherine Wolf of South Bend, Ind., eliminated Dorothy Conroy of Cincinnati, 6-0, 6-3. Nancy Corbett of Chicago beat Joanne Dunn of Des Moines, Ia., 6-2, 6-0. Pauline Betz of Los Angeles defeated Jane Wagner of Cincinnati, 6-0, 6-1. Gloria Thompson of St. Louis beat Monica Nolan of Cincinnati, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Indians Thrive on White Sox

Have Cleaned Hose Nine Times In Eleven Tries.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians meet their favorite opposition tonight — Chicago's White Sox, the team they have beaten nine times in 11 starts. Southpaw Al Smith hurls the series opener against a former tribal moundsman, Thornton (Lefty) Lee.

Yesterday's 7 to 4 loss to the Detroit Tigers cost the Redskins a chance to move back into third place and left them a half game behind the Boston Red Sox and in a virtual tie with the Bengals.

Jim Bagby failed to display his usual effectiveness against Detroit and was chased in the second inning when the Tigers tallied four times. Allie Reynolds was the victim of the other three markers. Virgil (Fire) Trucks went the distance for Detroit and scattered 11 hits.

Orin Hockett, the league's second best batter, started the game with his first home run of the year. Successive doubles by Buddy Rosar and Mike Rocco produced another tally in the second but Detroit took the lead with the four-run blast against Bagby in their half of the same stanza.

Reynolds gave the Tigers their other three runs in the sixth. The Indians picked up their third marker in the eighth on singles by Roy Cullenbine, Ken Keltner and Rocco and the last one in the ninth on Russ Peters' circuit smash with two out.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Somewhat bewilfed by their inability to win more than one game of three from the St. Louis Cardinals, the Cincinnati Reds entertain the Pittsburgh Pirates today.

Johnny Vander Meer is Manager Bill McKechnie's pitcher for the day, while Frankie Frisch is depending on Max Butcher.

The Cardinals had little trouble disposing of Bucky Walters and the Reds in yesterday's swing shift game. Harry Gumbert, who used to be an easy mark for the Reds, held them under control while his team piled up a 5-1 score.

Led by Whitey Kurowski, who got a home run and a double, and Stan Musial, with a double and triple, the Cards made 10 hits off Walters, Vernon Stone, and Jack Niemes.

Harry Walker opened the first inning with a single and scored on Musial's triple, and in the fourth Kurowski knocked in a run with a double and the Cards scored again on three passes and a force play.

The Reds finally tallied in the ninth on Woody Williams' double and Frank McCormick's single.

Doesn't Like Clay But Wins Matches

EVANSTON, Ill.—(UP)—For a net star with an aversion to a clay playing surface, Tom Brown, jr., of the University of California is getting along exceptionally well in the 59th annual national intercollegiate tennis tournament, which moved into the semi-final round today.

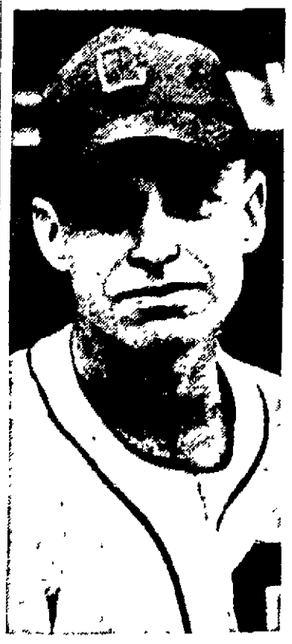
Brown moved into the round of four yesterday with a 6-3, 6-1, triumph over Robert Kimbrell of Southern California. His opponent today will be James Evert of Notre Dame, who advanced with a 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, triumph over Earl Bartlett, smooth stroking Tulane university ace.

The other semi-finals singles match pits Francisco (Pancho) Segura of the University of Miami against Earl Cochell of Southern California.

HINKLE NAMED

CHICAGO—(INS)—Lieut. Paul D. (Tony) Hinkle, football coach at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, today was named an assistant to Head Coach Harry Stuhldreher in preparing the college all-stars for their annual game the night of Aug. 25.

Quite a Guy



Meet Guy Curtwright, rookie outfielder of the Chicago White Sox, who is currently staging a consecutive games hitting streak which reached 18 on June 23. Curtwright was purchased from St. Paul where he hit .291 in 101 games.

Smooth-Striding Swede Scheduled for Many Races

Sweden's great distance runner, Gunder Haegg, shows you his smooth stride which has carried him to several world records and a victory over Greg Rice, America's premier distance runner, in his first U. S. appearance. Haegg soon goes on a U. S. tour which takes him to Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Boston, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Wasnington.

Brown Takes Look at Squad

17-Year-Old Frosh Help With Coaching.

By GRANT DILLMAN

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Coach Paul Brown put his squad of 48 freshmen aspirants for berths on next fall's Ohio State university football team through their paces for the first time today—with all indications pointing to an even tougher season than had been expected.

Brown said action by the Western conference suspending eligibility rules for the duration would have "very little effect" on Buckeye football plans.

Sports officials said the chief effect of the decison will be relaxation of requirements which make it necessary for a student to attend a Big Ten school at least one year before he can take part in Western conference athletics.

The ban against freshmen was waived several weeks ago and the scholarship requirements were not expected to be lowered at Ohio State.

"It's an effort to carry on the game in any way possible," Brown said, "but it won't affect our plans very much. Our next year's team still is going to have to be built largely of these freshmen out there today and a nucleus of returning veterans from last year."

Colleges with naval trainees would benefit most from the relaxation of eligibility requirements, Brown said, because navy transfer students now will be able to compete in Big Ten competition. Army college trainees are not permitted to take part in intercollegiate sports under present army rules.

Ohio State is one of three schools in the Western conference which are not designated as naval training colleges. Iowa, which is not on the Buckeye schedule this season, and Indiana, which is, are the other two schools.

Brown appeared well pleased with his squad of 17-year-olds as they worked outside for the first time after spending the first part of the week inside and getting their equipment.

"They're young and they're light, but they've got a tremendous lot of enthusiasm and they want to learn," Brown said.

Whether or not their youth and enthusiasm can overcome the seasoned veterans which colleges with naval trainees will have at their disposal is another matter, he said.

Five of the 48 freshmen are 17-year-olds who participated in spring training and who now are helping to coach the new crop of freshmen, Brown said.

"I'm right back where I was when I came from Massillon two years ago - teaching high school age youngsters," Brown added, "and I don't mind it a bit."

Trexler Flashes Red Light on AA Hitters.

(By Associated Press)

Indianapolis, third in team batting with a .260 average, has had to depend mostly on beneficial pitching to balloon it to its pinnacle in the American Association, and one of its chief hurlers is Jim Trexler, who almost retired from baseball this year to be a policeman.

Trexler hung up his ninth triumph last night, his seventh in a row, as the Indians defeated Louisville 5-4 to boost their lead in the pennant race to three full games after Kansas City had chopped off Milwaukee's winning streak at the 10-game mark.

The Indians grabbed their ninth verdict in their last 11 games, but Trexler failed to be around at the finish. The Colonels, who polished him off in the seventh, got all of their ten hits and four runs off his deliveries.

The Blues staved off two Brewer rallies to wring out a 5-4 decision.

The Minneapolis Millers blasted nine hits for a total of 21 bases to whip St. Paul, 8 to 4.

Toledo handed Columbus its worst pastime of the campaign, a 16 to 4 count, in a loosely played game. Scoring in seven of the nine innings, the Mud Hens blasted out 18 hits, with Phil Weintraub leading the attack with four blows in five trips. Seven errors were committed, five by the Red Birds.

ATTEMPT TO LINE UP CLEVELAND HAEGG RACE

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Local AAU officials are attempting to match Gunder Haegg, Swedish distance runner, against three of the nation's leading milers in his appearance here July 31.

The National AAU's program calls for Haegg to run 2,000 meters but Eddie Finnigan, district and track committee chairman, said officials are requesting the distance be changed to a mile.

GETS REFUND

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—"Just one of the trials and tribulations of the front office," A's Vice President Roy Mack commented today after refunding $1.71 to a lady baseball fan for a box seat to a game that had been postponed. The tickets was dated October 1, 1939.

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Milo Candini, the American league's leading pitcher (won 7 lost 0), hasn't much more chance of being picked for the All Star game at Philly June 13 than Hank Borowy had last year when he had the same sort of record. . . . Story is that not even Candini's manager, Ossie Bluege, named him on his ballot.

HOW TIMES CHANGE

Nolly Sams, Charleston, S. C., Evening Post sports writer and president of Charleston's Victory Baseball league, wants it understood that his is no small-change circuit. Because of the scarcity of nickels, Nolly ordered his ticket sellers to jump the grandstand price from 35 to 40 cents, and so far there hasn't been a single complaint about the increase.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

Every time he plays a game without hitting a homer, Joe Medwick is losing ground in his "feud" with Johnny Mize that began when they were both Cardinals. Mize caught up with Joe at the 184 home run mark before he started slugging 'em for the navy. . . . Figure this one out—on the same day that Babe Ruth proclaimed the major leagues won't finish the season because the club owners are losing too much dough, the Giants and Dodgers finished their first round with a total paid attendance of 65,643 for five games.

Suspend Rules On Eligibility

War Transfers Do Not Lose Athletic Status.

By MALCOLM MUIR, JR.

CHICAGO—(UP)—The Big Ten Athletic conference, recognizing that the armed services have assumed command of the collegiate sports scene for the duration, decreed today that its events no longer will be described as "intercollegiate."

The conference faculty committee ruled that Big Ten athletes—whether they be freshmen, soldiers, sailors, marines or holders of 4-F draft cards—will hereafter compete for the physical benefits only, not for competitive recognition.

Accordingly the committee turned over the responsibility of determining eligibility of individual athletes, to the member schools, waiving all but two of the Big Ten's restrictions.

The conference henceforth will demand only that the competing athlete be a regularly enrolled scholar and that he must not receive compensation for his athletic services. The committee cautioned, however, that each Big Ten school is expected to enforce educational standards "suitable to the current emergency."

To avert possible postwar eligibility complications, the faculty officials declare a duration moratorium on the Big Ten's supervision of its athletes. No intercollegiate competition by any athlete shall be charged against his record when he returns to his school after the war, the committee ruled.

This ruling served to clarify the status of a large group of servicemen-athletes who have been transferred from one school to another for specialized service training.

Under the ruling the Wisconsin football players who have been transferred by the marines to Notre Dame and the Minnesota players who find themselves playing for Northwestern this fall will not be charged on the conference books for such competition and may return to finish out their play as Badgers or Gophers after the war.

BIG LEAGUES DONATE WEDNESDAY RECEIPTS

NEW YORK—(INS)—All 16 major league ball clubs will donate their net receipts from next Wednesday's games to the National War fund, it was revealed today by Robert F. Kelley, director of special events.

This game is the first of two games to be played during the season for war relief.

Rip Runs Opposite From '42

Led In Losses Then, Gets Victories Now.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

TRUETT BANKS SEWELL led the National league in defeats last year, but this season has a chance to lead it in victories.

To date "Rip" has won nine games and has been beaten only twice—once by one run and another time when his Pittsburgh Pirates were shut out.

This is a record matched by no other pitcher in the senior circuit and seems to prove that at the age of 35, when most pitchers have gone over the hill, Sewell is still climbing.

The Dodgers were set down by the New York Giants 3-1 after winning the first five games of a six-game series and lost ground not only to the encroaching Pirates but also to the first place St. Louis Cardinals, who crushed the Cincinnati Reds 5-1 in a morning game.

The Phillies battered the Boston Braves with 16 hits to win a 12-5 decision and split their six-game series.

In the American league the two top clubs, New York and Washington, were idle but their leading rivals both were beaten. The Philadelphia Athletics overpowered the Boston Red Sox 8-3, and the Detroit Tigers whipped the Cleveland Indians 7-4.

The Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns divided a doubleheader with Vern Stephens hitting a single with the bases loaded in the tenth inning of the opener to give the Browns an 8-7 victory and the Sox retaliating with a 9-2 verdict in the nightcap.

BUCK GOLFERS DROP OUT OF TOURNAMENT

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Ohio State University's golf team will be unable to compete in the National Intercollegiate Golf tournament at Chicago, June 28-29-30, because army regulations prohibit two key team members from playing, Coach Bob Kepplar said today.

Kepplar said Johnny Lorms and Bob Kampfer, No. 1 and 2 man respectively on the Buckeye squad, are enrolled in the army dental reserve corps. Members of the army student training program are not permitted to participate in intercollegiate sports.

Harridge Says League Having Good Season.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The American league as a whole will finish in the black this season and unless there is a sharp tightening of the manpower situation club owners plan to operate in 1944, the loop's president, William Harridge declared today.

Harridge's remarks were made in a telephone interview with the Cleveland Plain Dealer and followed a prediction by Babe Ruth that major league baseball would become a war casualty next year—if not sooner.

"Speaking only for the American league, we will certainly finish this season and the league as a whole will finish in the black," Harridge asserted.

"There may be two or three clubs that will lose money. Perhaps there will be only one, and perhaps none. But even in our most prosperous years some clubs have finished in the red because some clubs have to lose and the fans generally do not support a losing team.

"Bad weather this spring cut down our early attendance, but we have picked up now to a point where we are only a short step behind last year's record. And last year was one of our good years."

Concerning next year Harridge said:

"Unless there is a sharp tightening of the manpower situation we'll plan to go ahead in 1944. We believe the people have shown that they want baseball."

The home run king of the 20's and early 30's was a guest this week at a newspaper carrier-boy party held as a feature of the International Circulation Manager's association.

"I have a hunch that baseball won't survive the current season," Ruth told interviewers. "The life of the old sport depends primarily on how long club owners are willing to lose money. It's a cinch that they won't open the ball parks next year."

FOOD, CLOTHING SALES GREATER

Tax Receipts For Second Week of June Total $12,356, $1,460 More Than '42.

Brisk sales of food and clothing helped to boost Richland county sales tax receipts for the second week of June to $1,460 above the corresponding week last year and continued to pile up this year's margin over the 1942 figures.

Figures released by State Treasurer Don H. Ebright showed the county's retail sales produced $12,536 in the week ending June 12 as compared with $11,076 for the corresponding week of 1942.

Richland county's collections now have climbed to $244,763 for the year, a gain of $2,405 over the 1942 total for a similar period.

While the county's receipts this year are ahead of 1942, the statewide collections are lagging $151,071 behind the 1942 figures, the treasurer's report showed.

Fred Myers, of near Mansfield, today filed a petition in common pleas court asking judgment of $50,000 from George H. Hagebauch and H. B. Stewart, jr., as trustees of the Akron, Canton and Youngstown Railroad company.

He states he was thrown violently to the ground, tearing a muscle in his left hip and in lumbar regions. He also says he has been disabled since that time.

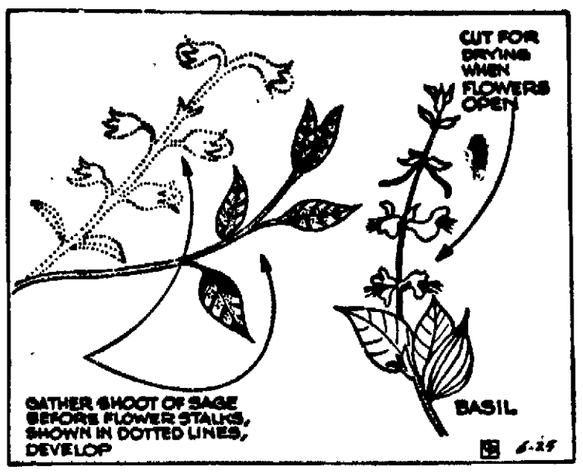
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Seasoning for the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association.

The victory garden can be made beautiful, as well as practical by the use of herbs as edging plants There are many pot herbs, salad herbs and seasoning herbs from which to choose.

Sage, one of the most important of the kitchen herbs, can be grown from seeds, or plants can be purchased which are ready to set out. Once started more plants of the sage can be propagated by means of cuttings, layering or divisions To keep the plants growing neatly, when sage is used as an edging plant, they should be divided biennially, otherwise they are apt to become straggly.

The shoots of sage should be gathered for drying purposes before the flower stems develop, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. In fact, the foliage of sage plants should not be permitted to grow too high but should be cut off at least two or three times a year. This results in a large number of side shoots, which, in turn, are especially full of flavor.

Basil is another important herb. It grows easily from seed into a plant about one foot high. It branches profusely, forming a compact, globular bush. The leaves of basil can be cut off as soon as the plants are big enough but should not be cut in quantities for drying until the flowers begin to open, as illustrated. After the first heavy cutting feed the plants well and they will continue to grow and put forth leaves profusely. Roots of strong plants can be potted for a winter's supply of seasoning.

ARMY DENTISTS BUSY

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo.—(U.P.)—Soldiers stationed here feel their courage has been proven the hard way. Military personnel made 121,341 sittings in dental chairs and had 33,880 teeth extracted during 1942, according to the annual report of Col. George M. Krough, station dental surgeon.

Fillings were put in 76,515 teeth—probably with an equal number of repeats on the "this won't hurt a bit" line.

INDUSTRIALS LEAD UPWARD MARKET SWING

Nation's Retail Spending Exceeds Last Year By 14 To 16 Per Cent.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Buying of industrials kept the stock market generally on the upgrade in today's early proceedings.

Fractional gainers at a moderately active opening included Chrysler, Republic Steel, U. S. Steel, Sears Roebuck and Goodrich. Small declines were posted for Bethlehem, Radio Corp. and Great Northern.

Holders of merchandising issues were encouraged by the Dun & Bradstreet survey estimating retail spending throughout the nation this week exceeded the comparable period last year by 14 to 16 per cent.

CHICAGO — (AP) — All grains jumped a cent or more shortly after the opening today on buying based upon a possibility ceilings on corn eventually would be raised. Trade was active.

The war food administration ordered requisition of corn stocks in commercial elevators. There were unconfirmed reports in grain trade circles this would be followed by advancing corn maximums to $1.30 a bushel, Chicago basis.

Wheat started ¼ to⅞ higher, July $1.42½-¼, September $1.42 ⅝-⅞, and rye was up ¼ to ⅞, July 95½-¼.

Soldier on Furlough Finds Father Evicted

Riding the train from Fort McPherson, Ga., Pfc. Paul Carner, jr., 29, planned how he would surprise his father upon his arrival at his home in Chicago. But instead he received the shock of seeing everything that had been home piled out on the sidewalk — his father evicted. Now he's spending his furlough re-establishing the home he knew before he went away to war.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Arrested Thursday—Leo Lucas, Shelby, arrested Thursday was fined $10 and costs in the mayor's court in Shelby on a charge of intoxication and disorderly conduct. He was sentenced to 16 days in the Richland county jail.

Charge Dismissed—Cited in municipal court yesterday on an assault and battery charge filed by his wife, Richard S. Wells, 94 Park avenue east, later was released after the charge was dismissed on the motion of Mrs. Beulah Wells, the complainant.

Gets Workhouse Term—T. J. Callahan, a transient, was ordered today to serve out a $50 fine and costs in the Columbus workhouse as an habitual law violater. He was sentenced by Municipal Judge H. H. Schettler on an intoxication charge after police found Callahan at Fourth and Main streets yesterday afternoon with three pairs of stolen sox in his possession. He couldn't remember where he had obtained the sox.

Movie Available—A motion picture on the proper methods of canning and preserving foods is available to organizations and community groups of 20 or more persons for showing at meetings this summer, Mrs. John Pierce, city OCD war service head, said today. Arrangements for showing the movie may be made by calling the home demonstration agent at the courthouse or the civilian defense office in the city building.

Warn Boys — Police today warned boys in the vicinity of Carpenter school not to shoot bows and arrows unless they go outside the city to do it. A number of Crouse street and Distl avenue residents have complained of the reckless shooting of arrows and expressed fear that some one would be injured if it continues. A steel-tipped arrow crashed through the window of a business establishment on Distl avenue last night, officers said.

LICENSE CAME HARD

RENO, Nev. —(U.P.)— Sailor Ishmeal L. Blankenship of Seminole, Okla., and Miss June E. Winchell, 20, of Bangor, Me., got married the hard way. They saved pennies for four months to pay for the $2 marriage license. Miss Winchell explained that they had once before succeeded in amassing the necessary 200 pennies, but had been obliged to spend them for things more pressing at the time than a marriage license.

The typical American home is a wooden, two-story structure containing five or six rooms and occupied by a single family.

FDR REFUSES TO ACCEPT UMW WORK DEADLINE

Says He'll Act on No-Strike Bill Today, But Doesn't Say What He'll Do.

Byrnes to demand that John L. Lewis and the UMW be compelled by the president to accept the WLB-dictated settlement of the coal industry's explosive wage dispute.

At the same time, a group of the country's largest coal operators conferred with Coal Administrator Harold L. Ickes on the broad subject of government management of the mines.

The operators were led by Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the U. S. Steel corp., which depends largely on the output of its own coal mines to keep its huge furnaces going; R. L. Ireland, president of the Hanna Coal company of Cleveland, and Charles O'Neill, spokesman for Central Pennsylvania soft coal operators.

The UMW had ordered the miners back to work until until Oct. 31 provided the government continued to operate the mines. Thousands of rank and file members, however, rebelled against their policy committee's order and refused to return to the pits until the status of their wage demands was clarified.

Board members headed by Vice Chairman George H. Taylor and Compliance Officer Wayne L. Morse called on Byrnes.

Ickes, in summoning the operators to his office, had told them the government may have to manage the mines, taken over May 1, "for a considerable period of time." Operators objected that continued government management will penalize them for Lewis' refusal to accept the WLB's settlement of the months-old wage-hour controversy.

Board members believe that the UMW should be forced to abide by their decision in the case just as other unions and employers have been compelled to accept other WLB decisions in the past.

Board members took the view that the government has adequate sanctions to employ against the union if it continues its defiance. Such sanctions might include use of the draft law to form labor battalions, as the president suggested Wednesday, elimination of the dues check off in government-operated mines, and perhaps seizure of union assets.

Ickes indicated he planned to assume a more active role in operating the mines than he has thus far.

A War Labor Board spokesman objected to a reference to the "controversy" between the union and operators in Ickes' telegraphed invitation to the operators yesterday. Whatever controversy existed was settled last week by the board's final order, which was sustained Wednesday by the president, the WLB spokesman said.

Operators were concerned about another sentence in the telegram in which Ickes said it was necessary that he "undertake active participation in the supervision of management and operation of the mines." Ickes assured a press conference yesterday, however, that the government was not "expropriating" the operators but merely acting as "custodian" of the mines.

Here's Summary Of Strike 'Front'

(By International News Service)

Wildcat strikes by embittered miners, hampered production of war-vital coal today as a scant majority of the nation's 540,000 coal diggers returned to work.

Thousands of miners in the rich coal producing areas of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Alabama refused to obey union chief John L. Lewis' order to return to the pits now that mines are under full jurisdiction of the U. S. government.

The situation on other strike fronts:

DENVER, Colo. — Week-long strike of 600 city employes ended.

YORK, Pa.—United Steel Workers union (CIO) terminate promptly strike at York Safe and Lock company plant engaged in war work.

PATERSON, N. J.—Wright Aeronautical corporation ordered discharged 110 coremakers who failed to report for work in what company termed a strike.

BOSTON—Striking bus drivers of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company return to work after brief strike which tied up transportation of thousands of war workers.

M'KEESPORT, Pa.—Bus drivers on Greensburg branch of Pennsylvania Transit company continue six-day strike.

CRYSTAL CITY, Mo.—Production of bomber cabins and dive-bomber pilot inclosures interrupted at Pittsburgh Plate Glass company plant by walkout of 200 employes.

Pigeon-Hole All Set For FDR's Request

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Members of the house military affairs committee predicted today that a special pigeon-hole would be waiting for President Roosevelt's "work-or-fight" proposal when it reaches congress.

The committee handles selective service legislation and heretofore has been overwhelmingly opposed to similar proposals for using the draft as an anti-strike weapon.

With every sign pointing to a tough battle if the president asks congress for power to put strikers in government operated plants into the army, Sen. Edward V. Robertson, R., Wyo., came up with the charge that Mr. Roosevelt had no idea that congress would ever enact his proposal.

The Smith-Conally anti-strike bill, which would make it possible to put labor leaders in jail and fine them if they called strikes in government operated industries, must be signed or vetoed by midnight tonight or it will automatically become law. General congressional belief is that Mr. Roosevelt will veto it.

Before--and After--Seabees Arrived on Adak

Many of the damaging raids made upon the Jap base at Kiska in the Aleutians have been carried out by U. S. planes based on Adak, 244 miles away. Responsible for getting the base in tip-top fighting condition are the Navy's Seabees. When the base was taken over it was filled with ruts, (top) and knee-deep mud. A Ventura bomber warms up (bottom) on the new metal runway.

Seeks To Get Ohio Miners On the Job

BELLAIRE—(AP)—Adolph Pacifico, vice president of District 6, United Mines Workers, said he would meet today with union field representatives in an attempt to induce complete return of Ohio's coal miners to the pits.

Unionists in at least 10 eastern Ohio mines employing about 6,000 men voted yesterday not to resume work.

One official estimated only about 15 per cent of the 9,000 miners in eastern Ohio had returned to their jobs, and Hocking Valley reports indicated only half the workers there had gone back. Ohio has about 21,000 coal miners.

Pacifico said the men were reluctant to resume production of war-vital coal because "the government is not actually operating the mines." He added "the men would be glad to return if the government would take over and run the mines instead of leaving them in the hands of operators."

CALLED SUICIDE

WAUSEON—(INS)—A verdict of suicide was given today in the shooting of James Wilson Morris, 31, formerly of Fostoria and now of Fayette, whose body was found last night by his father James Morris and a neighboring farmer, Willard Beaverson.

Jury Hits Jail Conditions Again; Indicts In 19 Cases

Indicted for grand larceny were Vernon Swank and Charles Needs. R. D. Shelby, and for petty larceny, S. A. Futrel.

Other indictments and charges they involve were returned against the following: Charles Brooks, colored, neglect; Stella Burrell, alias Stella Burnett, two charges of forgery; John Doe, alias, Joseph Mosley, alias Joseph Burrell, forgery; Simon Scott, shooting with intent to wound; John Victor Woods, alias Jack Woods, non-support; John Shoup, robbery; Irvin Adkins, alias Murle Barnard, alias C. DEMANDS EDMUNDS QUIT

CLEVELAND — (AP) — George E. Fuhrman, leader of the Cuyahoga Temperance Organization, demanded the resignation of Dr. W. P. Edmunds, Cleveland area manpower director, for suggesting that war foundries offer free beer and pretzels to workers to help combat absenteeism.

STEAL IN JAIL

Youths Charged With Taking Gas Ration Coupons.

CANTON — (AP) — Two Canton youths were under arrest today for the theft of 200 sheets of gasoline rationing coupons, worth 8,000 gallons of motor fuel.

Police said the pair stole the coupons while they were in jail several days ago in Dover in neighboring Tuscarawas county. The two had access to the sheets because the Dover rationing board used a jail cell to store supplies, officers reported.

Gasp In Horror At Free Beer and Pretzels Proposal

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The suggestion of Dr. William P. Edmunds, Cleveland area director of the war manpower commission, that free beer and pretzels be served twice a day to war workers was greeted with cries of horror today by government nutrition officials.

"It would be the very worst thing that could happen," one nutrition expert said.

"A ridiculous suggestion," another said.

Dr. Edmunds told foundry operators yesterday in Cleveland that beer and pretzels would speed up production.

"We have no evidence to support such a contention," officials here said. "A glass of milk would be more like it."

One war production board official said: "No comment—but I'd like to know how to get some free beer and pretzels in this office—once a day!"

Michigan Leaders Study Call For Grand Jury on Riots.

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Gov. Harry F. Kelly confers with his four-man fact-finding committee and with other state, military and local officials today to determine whether a special grand jury will be asked to investigate causes of Monday's disastrous race rioting.

Both Kelly and Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, jr., have indicated calling of a jury would be necessary to determine whether the riots which claimed 31 lives were "spontaneous," as police believe, or whether they were inspired by Axis-backed instigators.

As preparations for prosecution of riot leaders continued, federal and state troops and state police still patrolled the city's streets, enforcing provisions of a modified emergency order including a midnight curfew and bans on liquor sales between 10 p. m. and 7 a. m.

Kiwanis Meeting — American Association of University Women's orchestra entertained members of the Kiwanis club with several selections at their luncheon meeting yesterday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Members of the orchestra are Mrs. E. D. Gibson, Mrs. J. C. Klinger, Mrs. L. S. Houk, Mrs. Gene Keil, Mrs. Howard Diller, Miss Pearl Danback, Miss Marjorie Henry and Miss Fannie Lew Eiler.

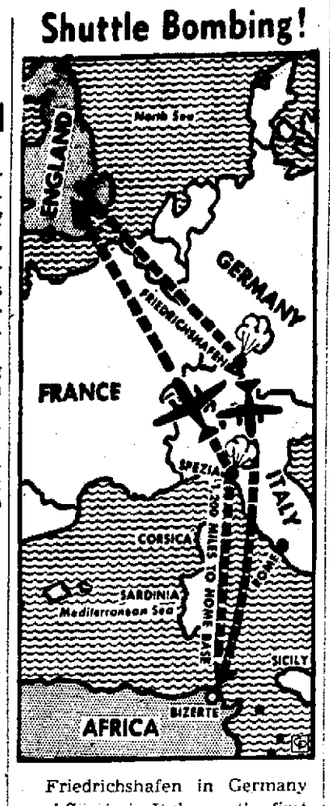
Shuttle Bombing!



Friedrichshafen in Germany and Spezia in Italy are the first two victims of the RAF's new "shuttle bombing" technique. As this map shows, planes taking off from England bombed Friedrichshafen and then flew on to North Africa. Later, long range bombers taking off from North Africa hit Spezia and then flew on to an air base in England.

strength," he said, "we shall not be anxious about our final success. . . .

"We fully realize that an Anglo-American attempt at invasion may possibly lead to decision of the war. For this reason, we are more for it than against it. . . .

"Such an attempt would not be an adventure but a sober mathematical calculation for the Axis command. So far as is humanly possible, we are prepared for it."

With regard to aerial bombardment of German industrial cities, Goebbels admitted heavy damage to military establishments but insisted this could be repaired "in a short time." He said the Allies soon may have to consider whether losses sustained are worth while.

In conclusion, Goebbels referred to the present period as the "twilight of the war" aind called upon the German people to preserve national discipline in the face of British efforts "to undermine our moral fiber."

Rossi's ophidian eyelids
red upwards for an instant.
n that instant, he caught of a sign behind the bar—a which read

A SLIP OF THE LIP
CAN SINK A SHIP!

Er, pardon me!" he inter-
l, whisperingly. "Do . . . you . . . see . . . that . . . sign . . . sir?"

"That? Hunh! Sure! But . . ." SOCK!

Mr. Rossi did not look down at the unconscious form; in fact, he did not seem to be looking in any direction at all. Even though he took up one of his seven whisky glasses and poured the few drops which remained in it on his bruised and bleeding knuckles, his eyes, like his mind, seemed occupied with dark, inner mysteries.

With the chin of his bowed head resting upon his chest and his hands clasped behind him, Mr. Rossi walked slowly out in the misty, Neon-glowing night of West Seventeenth street. His brow was clouded and his face was deathly pale.

Captain Elder put on his spectacles, laid the case on the tablecloth beside him and proceeded to sharpen the carving knife.

"Well, well, well—and how's my little baby girl?" he beamed at his daughter, who was seated on his right.

"Oh, I'm fine, Daddy—perfectly! But how's my own darling Daddy?"

"—Yes, and how come you're ashore?" inquired Lieutenant Howard Rockwell. "Did they finally catch you tanked up on your tanker and fire you, Pop?"

Captain Elder glared at his son-in-law, around whose sprucely-uniformed shoulder dangled the gold cord and aiguilletes of an admiral's aide. "No, they didn't fire me'" he said. "And don't call me Pop!"

"But what are you doing ashore . . . sir?"

"I'm carving a chicken! What do I look like I'm doing—milking a whale?"

"Now, now, David!" Mrs Elder's pacifying voice came from the other end of the table. "You know you really mustn't mind him, Howard. He's . . . he had a little trouble at sea, that's all."

Lieutenant Rockwell studied his father-in-law's seamed and weather-beaten face and then nodded gravely "Yes," he said, "I think I understand."

"Oh, Daddy, dear! What happened? Please tell us!"

"M'mph! Oh, nothing much!" Elder removed his spectacles and polished them vigorously on his napkin. "Funny!" he grunted, "Can't see a damn thing through 'em!"

Suddenly Adelaide reached over and felt the leather case. It was still damp.

"Oh!" she said, quietly. "They sank you, didn't they, father?"

"M'mph, well, yes—I s'pose they did!"

"Oh, by George, sir! When did it happen?"

"Ask Lieutenant Commander Frazer and some of your other—er, fans! White or dark meat?"

Rockwell nodded understandingly. "You're right," he said. "Let's forget about it and keep this a family party!—Dark meat, please, Pop!"

"DON'T CALL ME P . . .! Oh, all right, all right, Mommy! But I do wish you'd make him lay off that 'Pop' stuff!"

As the meal drew to a close, Captain Elder leaned back and sighed contentedly. "Well," he said, it's kind of nice to get home, once in a while! Let's go out to the parlor and sit around while Adelaide sings a few songs. Gosh, baby—I'm really kind of hungry to hear you sing Ben Bolt again!"

Lieutenant Rockwell looked at his watch and then at his wife. "You tell him!" he said. "I don't dare!"

Adelaide Rockwell got up and placed her arms around her father's neck. "Oh, Daddy!" she said, "I'm so awfully, terribly, terrifically sorry, but I can't stay and sing for you! You see, Howard has arranged for me to sing at the Navy Relief benefit tonight and . . ."

"Navy benefit? Oh, Navy benefit, hunh? Well, it's too damn bad she can't sing for her Merchant Marine father's benefit, once in a while!"

When the young couple had gone, Elder and his wife sat in their little living room, holding hands and listening to the phonograph. It was playing a vocal record of Ben Bolt, and though it was a pallid substitute for what he had hoped to hear, it was a perfect accompaniment to the peaceful, domestic and frankly sentimental scene.

As the last sweet note faded into the silence, Elder stirred. "If Adelaide would only . . ."

"Br-r-r-i-i-n-n-g-g!" the phone rang stridently. He took it up. His wife's hands clenched in her lap until the knuckles whitened.

"Captain Elder speaking! Oh, yes, good evening, sir! Ah? Yes? Yes? Well, say, that's fine! I'm—I'm really mighty grateful, sir! What's that? Oh, yes—taxi from North River ferry! Yes, yes, I know how to get there, sir; Okay—first thing in the morning. Right! Goodnight, sir!"

He turned and stood looking down at his wife. She stared at him with wide open eyes, her breast heaving gently. For a long moment they remained thus; then, very slowly, they smiled at each other. She rose and he took her in his arms. "Pack my bag, Mommy," he said, softly. "My own sweet, pretty little Mommy!" He looked after her as she left the room; then he returned to the phone and dialed a number.

Residents Refused Damages In Actions Against City.

Two $750 damage suits brought against the city of Mansfield by Alex and Esther Adelman, man and wife, had been dismissed today in municipal court by Judge H. H. Schettler.

The Adelmans, Mansfield residents, had contended that a city repair on Orange street was improperly marked last January when their car dropped into a trench in the street, damaging the car and slightly injuring them.

City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner argued at the hearing that the trench across the street was marked with lanterns and a barricade. The accident occurred after dark when the street was icy. Attys. Frank Culp and H. M. Rust represented the plaintiffs.

SEEK HUTS TO STORE TIN CANS

City Officials Plan Storage as They Sound Appeal To Continue Salvage.

While the city today sought some abandoned WPA huts for storing processed tin cans until they can be shipped, Mansfield housewives were urged to save their cans to help supply the growing demand for tin.

After getting reports from the garbage department that large quantities of processed cans had been thrown on the city dumps, Mayor W. J. Locke, as city OCD chairman, said an attempt would be made to acquire abandoned shacks formerly used for WPA tool sheds so the city can store the cans until enough have been saved to make a carload.

Meanwhile, the OCD war services office asked that cans be processed and saved until there is another city-wide collection about mid-summer.

It was pointed out that the tin from cans goes into the manufacture of pure tin tubes for a sedative servicemen carry in their kits. The miniature hypodermic, called a "syrette," is used by wounded men to ease their pain until help arrives.

WHAT HAPPENED TO FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

AFTER SEVEN WEEKS of intensive work, laboratory researchers have discovered the reason why certain batches of Fletcher's Castoria caused nausea.

Methods of preventing a recurrence of the trouble are now known and manufacture is being resumed.

No Fletcher's Castoria has been made during this seven-week period, and at its beginning the makers issued a nationwide warning to consumers and retailers not to use or sell the product and to return all stocks for destruction.

The U. S. Food and Drug Administration has been kept informed of all these developments.

Q. What caused the trouble?

A. The sugar content of Fletcher's Castoria was reduced to conserve sugar under wartime conditions. A year ago, Castoria was made with this reduced sugar content and was up to standard in every respect. This year, in March, we again started production with reduced sugar.

However, at that time a chemical change — harmless in itself—occurred in the characteristics of the water used in making Castoria. But this change, in combination with the reduced sugar, increased the degree and rate of normal fermentation. The more rapid fermentation retarded normal re-oxidation during the ageing process, resulting in a product which caused nausea.

Q. Why didn't normal tests show that something was wrong?

A. The changes which occurcurred were so elusive that they could not be detected by the regular testing procedures — procedures which had kept Castoria a respected product for more than seventy-five years. In fact, even after the nauseating effect was discovered in actual use, it took weeks of laboratory research to identify the factors that were causing the trouble.

Q. What are the makers doing to prevent a recurrence of the trouble?

A. Now that the cause is known, procedures have been put in effect which will assure normal re-oxidation of the product. Additional safeguards have been set up. New laboratory controls have been installed. New biological and chemical tests will be applied to every batch of Fletcher's Castoria. Each bottle will be stamped with a plainly visible control number, in verification of these tests.

Q. Is Fletcher's Castoria now on sale?

A. No. Manufacture has been resumed, but because of the time required for manufacture and distribution it may be about two months before Castoria will again be on sale at your retailer's. When it is, you will be notified in your local newspaper.

Q. Will the package be the same?

A. No. The Fletcher's Castoria now being made will bear a distinctive green band. This green band is for your protection in case any old Castoria has not been returned.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JUNE 25, 1943.

As the start-off of a universal language, the word "gimme" seems to be quite generally understood.

Mr. Baruch prefers a park bench to a chair in a government office—thus enjoying the companionship of squirrels that are intended to be such.

It has been suggested that, after the war, American teachers be sent to Germany to re-educate German children. Meanwhile Detroit seems to offer a fertile field for experimental work along that line.

Coal Miners Are Confused--Who Isn't?

WHATEVER merit there may have been at one time in President Roosevelt's proposal to extend the selective service age to 65, so that all striking miners could be drafted for "non-combat military service," has been lost as a result of delayed action and governmental ineptitude in handling the whole problem of wage and price control.

The Ickes faux pas of announcing assessment of a one-dollar a day fine against more than a half million miners for a previous five-day work stoppage is now matched by the president's notion that, instead of a fine, the penalty for work stoppage should be induction into non-combat military service, which, in this case, would obviously mean compulsory work in coal mines.

Little wonder that many thousand miners are confused by the whole muddled situation and angered by such a proposal. They are told by the president that the War Labor Board has full authority to decide labor disputes. They are told by John L. Lewis, their chief, that the War Labor Board has no authority to enforce its orders. Partial agreement was reached that they should be granted portal-to-portal pay, in lieu of an outright wage increase. Then the War Labor Board ruled against portal-to-portal pay and said that the courts should decide.

A point that has scarcely been touched upon in this controversy, which has been productive of much heat but little light, is whether, on the basis of increased costs of living and compensation for comparable wartime work, coal miners are entitled to higher wages than they are now receiving.

The idea of portal-to-portal pay, based on actual time-consuming conditions at each mine, is entirely defensible and is common to practically all lines of manual labor. The fault in presentation of this claim has been the effort to make a fixed amount apply in all cases—regardless of differences in portal-to-portal distances or working conditions peculiar to various mines and sections of the country.

Rising prices for commodities, extremely high wages paid to war workers in other lines of employment which they regard as no more essential than their own, high income taxes and the impending 20 per cent payroll deduction—all of these things enter into the thinking of coal miners as their minds attempt to fathom the intricacies of governmental precedure.

Small wonder that they do not understand. Nobody does!

When They Are 'Home-Town Boys'

THE REALITY of war becomes much more vivid when thought is directed toward individuals instead of toward armies.

That is why the entire Mansfield community has felt deep concern over the fate of those home-town boys who were in the action at Bataan and about whom nothing was heard for many months.

Realization of the anxiety of their parents and other close relatives brought the welfare of these boys very close to the hearts of Mansfield people and there is a feeling of relief as a result of the announcement that seven of the eight are accounted for as being alive, even though they are being held as prisoners of war by the Japanese.

It is the fact that they are alive that is joyfully received by their families and friends—for this strengthens hope that they will survive the hardships and deprivations of internment in a foreign land and will eventually return to their homes and loved ones.

This also gives emphasis to the plea that every possible ounce of energy be expended by every loyal American to provide the maximum of munitions and supplies needed by the Allied military forces, so that the war can be brought to successful conclusion at the earliest possible moment. Many thousands of American boys will be killed, wounded or taken prisoner, if the war is unnecessarily prolonged, who would otherwise be spared. Some of them will be from Mansfield and Richland county.

More Than Enough Coffee Now

A COFFEE surplus, rather than a shortage, seems to be the present trouble, and further relaxation of rationing restrictions was announced yesterday.

The pound-per-person every five weeks has already been dropped to allow purchase of a pound for the month of June, and newest change is to increase the allowance to a pound every three weeks, starting July 1.

It appears that during May this country imported 45,000,000 pounds more coffee than was consumed, and that the excess of imports over consumption is increasing.

Coffee is not like some other commodities that can be accumulated and stored indefinitely without flavor and quality being impaired.

Warehouses are now reported overflowing with green, unroasted coffee, some of which is becoming stale. According to W. F. Williamson, secretary-manager of the National Coffee association, there is in sight right now three months' supply of green coffee, not including supplies in grocery stores, and there was no legitimate reason why OPA shouldn't loosen consumer restrictions on coffee purchases, so as to prevent present stocks from going stale and opening warehouse space for incoming shipments.

It should possibly be explained, however, that use of a pound of coffee every three weeks is not compulsory upon persons who have become accustomed to getting along with less.

It is explained that a Philadelphian stole a steam shovel "in a moment of weakness"—which gives an idea of what may be expected of him when he is in robust condition.

Another difficulty being encountered by that class of workers is to keep the white collar white.

Detroiters are emphatic in declaring "this isn't our Detroit—strangers have come among us."

UNAPPRECIATED ATTEMPT TO HELP

Dewey 'Top Man' at Conference

By JACK STINNETT

COLUMBUS—Notes on one Thomas E. Dewey from the biggest Conference of Governors in all the 35 years these pow-wows of the state execs have been held.

Gov. Dewey of New York may not be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1944, as he insists, and anybody who tries to draft him may get "a sock in the eye from Albany," as his intimates here declared, but he was certainly top man on the Governors' Conference.

From the moment of his arrival all eyes were on him. He was so swamped with requests for conferences and press interviews that his private secretary, Paul Lockwood, had to take them in relays and the governor forewent a lot of social engegements to keep pace with the demands on his time.

THIS is the first time since he has become governor of New York that Dewey has made a public appearance outside of his state. To those of us who knew him in his racket-busting days as district attorney, and later during his illfated drive for the Republican nomination at the Philadelphia convention three years ago, here was a different Dewey.

In those days he was stiff with formality. He played unapproachable and although no one questioned his accomplishments as a prosecutor, his press conferences frankly were a pain in the neck.

Imagine the difference then, the other day, when he greeted a handful of the newsmen in his shirt-sleeves, chain-smoked cigarets from a silver holder and "let his hair down" in a friendly confidence.

When he talked off the record, he had something to say that gave us a better understanding of the man and a clearer conception of his views. He didn't pontificate, either.

DEWEY has mellowed. In spite of the amazing record he made before that age, maybe he has come to realize that life really does begin at 40.

This isn't a purely personal viewpoint. Although Dewey was assigned the task of speaking on the food supply—a subject which normally should have been tossed to one of the governors of the purely agricultural states—his address was greeted with more "amens" from Republicans and more attention from the Democrats than any given here, except that partially off-the-record address by Chief of Staff. Gen. George C. Marshall.

Although conference officials did a wonderful job of soft-pedalling politics, to keep it entirely out of the picture in a session of governors in a pre-election year was impossible. The political attention, of course, centered on the Republican potentials for the 1944 presidential ticket. I made as thorough a poll as possible of both Republicans and Democrats as to how they thought these potentials had emerged from the conference.

The list shaped up this way: Governor Dewey, first; Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, and host Gov. John W. Bricker, tied for second place; with Gov. Earl Warren of California, fourth, but still in the money.

Dave Boone Says:

WELL, I guess those coal miners may have to include compasses in their equipment so they can be sure whether they're going back into the mines or just coming out again. They must be in an awful state of dizziness.

* * *

But John Lewis has agreed to let them stay in until Oct. 31 anyhow, and it must be sort of comforting to them to know that they won't get a call while their picks are in midair.

That row between General Giraud and General De Gaulle has been settled. And there's no Oct. 31 deadline to it so far. From now on each disagrees with the other under his own auspices instead of by a joint agreement.

* * *

It's a funny thing about all settlements these cuckoo days. They're all settled in such ways that nobody can understand what's been settled and if so how?

* * *

If anything was settled today in such a way that anybody could fathom it clearly and explain it to somebody else it would be an awful shock. I doubt if we could stand it. We would get the idea everything was proceeding sensible along old-fashioned lines of complete frankness, and that would be pretty disturbing.

Timely Editorial

Stakes for Tomatoes.

Victory gardeners are now making up their minds as to whether to stake their tomato plants.

The experts favor staking. They argue that earlier ripening and better colored, larger-sized and superior fruits are obtained by training the vines to stakes. Such results certainly are desirable. On the other hand, not all gardeners have suitable stakes. Vines which are allowed to spread are more fruitful.

At one time the tomato was looked upon with suspicion. Now, it is the Victory gardener's No. 1 crop and rightfully so. It can be eaten raw or cooked, served as a salad or drunk as a cocktail. The fact that it can be put up in either tin cans or glass jars by the home canner who lacks a pressure cooker makes it even more attractive. — Cleveland Press.

RESTRAINT

THERE was one blue star in the large front window.

"Yes," his mother said, in answer to my inquiry," we have one star. He was all we had. Our hopes for the future are bound up in him. A playful, mischievous, happy lad he was—always doing things.

"My husband and I went to college, but the old homestead, with all the memories, has been our home for many years now. Our son was born here. It will be his.

"He loves trees. Planted that five-acre orchard, all himself, from 12 years old on. Belonged to Future Farmers and 4-H. Things grow for him better'n for his dad or me. School, in spring and fall, was almost more than he could stand, but every night he'd read bulletins and farm books after we were abed.

"Last fall, when the sceding was done and the corn harvest finished, he went to the service. Homesick at first, but that changed after a bit. He hasn't lost interest in the farm, though. Said once he guessed he had as much to fight for as any man living—that makes a good soldier, too.

"I wrote him a short letter this morning. Since you're interested, maybe you'd like to read it. . . .

"Dearest Sam," — I read— "Every day this week I wrote you. Missed two days last week. Hope you won't get them all at once.

"I never thought a son of mine would live 'way down under,' but I'm glad you're busy drilling for you never could be happy sitting still. It's fine you like your officers and your buddies.

"So you had apple pie, beef steak and ice cream for dinner. At home we couldn't stand a meal like that, any more. Rolled oats, peas, lettuce and potatoes—occasionally we open a can of meat.

"Dad finished the corn, but the rows are not as straight as yours last year. Dad smiled and said he was out of practice and anyway there'd be more corn in his than in yours.

"Old Sally had three pups last week and she's so jealous that only Dad and I can get near the nest. She even killed a curious old hen that came too close. We named the cutest puppy Bob—for you—fancy that!

"Your orchard never looked finer. Twenty of the apples will have some fruit. Dad sprayed them — between showers. No peaches this year. Rained every day in May except four. Six days in June, so far. Oats looks good from our window—Dad says there is some rust, though.

"Am sending a package. Won't tell you what, until you open it. We think of you often—and that's all the time. . .

Lovingly,
MOTHER."

Vinson Firm Against Farm Bloc In Secret Committee Meeting

WASHINGTON—The weather was hot outside, but no hotter than the grilling Fred M. Vinson received in his first appearance on Capitol Hill as economic stabilization director, at a closed-door meeting of the senate agriculture committee.

Farm bloc spokesmen went after him hammer and tongs regarding the administration's price-control policies. However, the former justice of the U. S. court of appeals, who is No. 2 man in the new office of War Mobilization, stood his ground. Having served in congress he knew how to take care of himself, and insisted that any further hikes in farm parity price ceilings would wreck the anti-inflation program.

Vinson highlighted his testimony with a statement that the country faced a serious shortage of corn for war industrial uses, chiefly in the manufacture of corn starch and alcohol, as well as in the production of steel and aluminum. He revealed that 140,000,000 bushels of corn were needed for industrial uses in the next four months, but that only 40 or 50 million could be procured.

Farmers, Vinson said, were holding out their corn or feeding it to hogs and cattle, rather than sell at the government ceiling price of $1.07 a bushel.

Note: It wasn't brought out at the time, but this was the reason behind the disclosure by J. B. Hutson, chief of the Commodity Credit Corporation, the day after Vinson's appearance that Commodity Credit has notified farmers to pay up government loans on 47,000,000 bushels of 1942 corn by July 15, or surrender the corn. Hutson also revealed that the Commodity Credit is planning to "requisition" 25,000,000 bushels in addition, now in elevators, paying current ceiling prices.

No Cow Feed.

THE threatened shortage of butter and other dairy products could be traced to the same bottleneck, the stabilization boss declared. Due to corn hoarding, dairy farmers haven't enough feed for their poultry and milk cows. Rather than sell at $1.07 a bushel to dairymen, corn producers are fattening their hogs and beef cattle for market, Vinson said. As a result, vitally-needed dairy products are running short, while pork production is rising. The two should be brought into balance, Vinson said, but this was impossible while corn hoarding continued.

Vinson had to run a gauntlet of questions by Senators John Bankhead of Alabama, George Aiken of Vermont and Walter George of Georgia (a committee guest). They contended that farmers couldn't afford to dispose of their corn immediately at the present ceiling price.

The three Senators contended that farmers realized an estimated $1.19 or $1.20 a bushel for corn fed to hogs, based on the current high market prices for pork. Therefore, they asked, why should the farmer sell corn for commercial uses at $1.07 a bushel?

Aiken suggested that there would be plenty of corn available for war industrial uses and for the dairy industry if the price ceiling were raised to $1.25. Vinson replied that he wanted to see all farmers make a decent profit, but that his job was to hold down inflation.

"I intend to do that to the best of my ability, gentlemen," he concluded.

Schoolboy Pranks.

A CERTAIN sophomoric trick is running like a disease through the halls of congress. One member phones another and says, "This is Donald Nelson;" or "This is the president of the Anti-Saloon league," and invites the victim to make a speech at a "giant rally," but when the member shows up, there is no rally.

Recently, Congressman Brent Spence of Kentucky was called on the phone by a man who said he was Claude Wickard. But Spence had been bitten before, so he said, "Oh, yeah?"

"I want very much to see you," said the voice, "to talk about funds for the Commodity Credit Corporation. May I come to your office?"

"No," said Spence, "I'm busy."

"May I see you later in the day?"

Spence put him off by saying, "Come to my hotel, if you want to."

That afternoon there appeared in the lobby of the Roosevelt hotel none other than Claude Wickard, secretary of agriculture. For it was really Wickard who had called Congressman Spence.

Spence was not in the lobby, so Wickard phoned his room. "This is Claude Wickard," he said, "I'm waiting in the lobby."

"Well," said the congressman, "you can just cool your heels a while," and he slammed down the telephone.

Claude Wickard is a patient man, but this was too much. With rising temperature, he waited a few minutes, then called again. This time Spence was really mad.

"Listen, this is the second time you've disturbed me, and it's not a joke any more. Get the hell off this line."

Wickard stamped out of the hotel and drove home. It is not often that a cabinet member is snooted by a congressman, and Wickard was puzzled and hurt.

Days later, he mentioned the affair to his friend Marvin Jones, former chairman of the agriculture committee of the house. Jones was puzzled also, and he called Spence on the phone.

"Look here, Brent," he said, "what's the trouble between you and Wickard? Why won't you see him?"

"Wickard?" replied Spence. "That wasn't Wickard, that was somebody pulling a hoax on me."

"Oh no," said Jones, "Wickard has been trying to see you for days, and you've been treating him like dirt."

"My heavens!" said Spence. "Was it really the secretary of agriculture?"

George of Georgia.

SENATOR GEORGE of Georgia sat in the senate the other day reading an article in a local newspaper predicting that he would be Roosevelt's vice-presidential running-mate in 1944.

The political dope, expounded by the newspaper, was that FDR needed a conservative Southern statesman as vice presidential candidate in order to carry the South, and that George was the man to do it.

Stern-visaged Senator George, who actually has a delightful sense of humor, ran his pen-knife around the article, clipped it, and scribbled on the margin:

"I decline the nomination."

Then he sent it by a page-boy up to Vice President Wallace, who was presiding over the senate. Wallace read the clipping, grinned appreciatively at Senator George.

Note: Though George and the president differed vehemently during the purge campaign of 1938, the senator actually has remained one of the administration's most effective battlers on many issues. Other senators know he has no axe to grind for Roosevelt, so when he comes out for reciprocal trade treaties, or for supporting the president on foreign policy, he carries more than average weight.

Over the Route Where Rommel Was Chased; Some Interesting Odds and Ends About Trip.

SOMEWHERE IN AFRICA—(By Wireless)—From Cairo we retraced the whole long trail over which General Montgomery chased Rommel last fall and winter, all the way from Egypt to Tunisia. Lord, what a vast blank distance it is!

The desert in western Egypt and eastern Libya is absolutely flat, absolutely barren. It is like looking down on an endless skating rink.

From the air we could see where the war had been. We could see wrecked and blackened tanks by the score. We could see dumps of abandoned gasoline cans and used boxes, wrecked ships on the beach, crashed planes, and even gun pits that had once poured out steel and death. Everything stood out as though it had been painted, for there was nothing else at all on the desert except these remnants of war.

But the one thing that fascinated me most was the tracks of the tanks and the trucks. Yes, they were still there. The winter's winds had not covered them up. There were absolutely billions of tracks in the sand, tracks swerving and turning and intertwining as far as you could see. Never was such a plain picture drawn of modern war's mobility as that grandstand view of the infinite tracks in the sands of Rummel's defeat.

WE STOPPED over for a day at Tripoli, and I was disappointed, in Il Duce's paradise city. Oh, it was all right, but now take some comparable place like Santa Barbara and you've . . . oh well, let's skip it.

I rode a truck into town with a bunch of pilots in the afternoon. Some of the boys were looking for bright lights, and they disappeared. Others went to get their hair cut. Two more and myself went down to the harbor and stood there for a while looking over a wire fence at all the wreckage.

There were few Italians in the streets, but most of the street population seemed to be British and American soldiers. This was shortly after Tripoli fell, remember.

It didn't seem to me that what few Italians we saw were having any trouble restraining their joy. We were surprised to see Italian officers in the streets.

The fronts of the downtown buildings were pretty well smacked up by flying bomb fragments, but on the whole the city wasn't devastated like Sfax, Gabes and Bizerte. It was mainly the harbor that got it.

Most of the shops were closed but a few were open. There were signs at the airport warning us against drinking any of the local liquor, as it is known to produce ailments ranging from blindness to insanity. But we didn't see any evidence of any liquor to drink anyhow.

In boredom we finally wound up in a little teashop, drinking lukewarm coffee made of date seeds, and eating soggy little French pastries. The place was packed with Eighth Army men.

It seemed incongruous that an Italian shopkeeper in a town that had just been conquered should be running around his crowded shop taking in money hand over fist from his conquerors.

Our truck wasn't due to start back to camp till 4 o'clock, and by 3:30 we had seen all of Tripoli we wanted, so we bought a nickel's worth of peanuts apiece (for which we paid the equivalent of 20 cents) and sat on the truck floor eating them till time to go.

The next morning we left Tripoli on the last day of our long flight home.

LOOKING back over Africa, there are a few little grab-bag items I didn't get around to and haven't got room to do more than mention here—just a scattering of notes like passing thoughts . . . I was in one city where second-hand Packards sell today for $20,000 in American money, and where people pay a thousand dollars for tires. . . Pilots on our ferry routes over here are flying as high as 150 hours a month, the maximum on the airlines back home being 90 . . . In one city, where gasoline is almost extinct, you see dozens of autos with horses hitched to them, being used as taxis . . . All through Central Africa the first thing a man does when you are introduced is to whip out his Short Snorter bill and have you sign it . . . Many people are making collections of paper money from different countrys, pasting the ends of the bills together with Scotch tape. I saw rolls so big you couldn't get them in your pocket and I saw one more than 36 feet long . . . In these travels I saw the largest Negro city in the world outside of Harlem (I'm sure you never heard of it) and I saw anthills higher than a two-story house. . . . In one country the earth is sort of pinkish red, and when the wind blows this pink dust settles in a thin coat over everything. Pilots have been startled to look down and see herds of honest-to-goodness pink elephants . . . That's enough for today.

ALLIES STRIKE AT WUPPERTAL, ITALIAN ISLES

Salonika Raided For First Time; Ruhr Chemical Center Pulverized.

Pilots saw explosives burst among administration buildings and on the field and dispersal areas.

"At least three enemy aircraft were destroyed on the ground and oil fires were started," one Middle East bulletin said. "None of our aircraft is missing from these and other operations.

(The attack upon Salonika, a possible objective of any Balkan invasion, involved a round trip of more than 1,000 miles across the Mediterranean.)

Enemy air fields, docks, shipping and an important railway junction of Sardinia were hammered by U. S. squadrons of Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz's air forces after RAF Wellingtons attacked Catania, in Sicily, the preceding night.

These raiders shot down 20 of the many enemy fighters encountered and an RAF Beaufighter bagged another to make the score 21. The Allies lost nine planes.

Malta air squadrons also were active.

A Valletta communique announced that RAF planes attacked industrial installations at Pozzallo, Sicily, yesterday and similar targets at Augusta, Sicily, last night.

B-25 Mitchells led the American onslaught against Sardinia, hitting two supply ships at Golfo Aranci, northeastern part, and severely damaging the docks. Another formation blasted the Vinafiorita air field, also in the northwest part of the island.

B-26 Marauders made a successful attack on the railway junction at Chilivani, in north central Sardinia, and P-40 Warhawks swept over the southern portion of the island and left two small ships afire.

BURMA—British troops inflict heavy casualties on Japanese in three clashes on Chindwin river front.

While American fliers from Middle East bases hammered the Nazi-occupied Greek mainland, Allied bombers from North Africa pounded Catania, Sicily, and raided the Sardinian towns of Chilavani, Venafiorita, Golfo Aranci and Capoterra.

An Italian communique admitted damage and casualties "of some size" in Sardinia, but asserted that 33 Allied planes were shot down. The Fascist command also declared that Italian torpedo planes sank three steamers totaling 31,000 out of Allied convoys off North Africa and said Axis bombers attacked Bizerte.

Yesterday's attack on Salonika by U. S. bombers gained significance from the fact that Salonika was the base from which Allied forces swept through the Balkans in 1918 in a drive that began the end of the first World war.

On the Russian front, the strange lull of many weeks' duration continued to prevail, with the Soviet command mentioning only a single notable action—a break into German lines "west of Belgorod."

Red army headquarters said Russian troops stormed into Nazi defenses, destroyed three large blockhouses and a series of machine-gun nests, and left 180 German dead on the battlefield.

Belgorod lies 35 miles northeast of Kharkov.

American Air General Missing

LONDON—(INS)—An American air general, Brig. Gen. Nathan Forrest, was lost during the Flying Fortress raids on the German ports of Kiel and Bremen on June 13, European headquarters of the United States Army disclosed today.

The headquarters announcement said that Gen. Forrest is missing along with the crew of one of the Forts which failed to return from the mission.

Gen. Forrest, a native of Memphis, Tenn., was the great-grandson and namesake of the famous Confederate army cavalry officer who coined the phrase: "Get thar fustest with the mostest men."

Sea-Going Guerrillas Bothering Nazis

STOCKHOLM —(AP)— Sea-going Greek guerrillas have given the invasion-conscious Axis new cause for worry in the Balkans, it was disclosed today.

Photographs published in Hitler's own newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, and the German magazine Die Woche illustrated how the Axis is combatting guerillas whom the Germans described as "pirates" operating in small sailing and motor boats against Axis merchant ships in the Aegean.

For more than a year well-organized Greek and Yugoslav patriots, striking from hideouts in the wild Balkan mountains, have been reported steadily

Dancer Convicted In Washington Scandal

Weeps When Male Jury Finds Her Guilty.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — An all-male federal court jury today found Carmen Beach Martin, 29-year-old Spanish rhumba dancer, guilty of having operated a "call" house in an exclusive residential section adjacent to "Embassy Row."

The sloe-eyed beauty was found guilty of one of four counts that involved a visit to a hotel with Dorothy Smitley, her 20-year-old protegee, where they "entertained" an army officer and civilian.

Dorothy had testified she lived with Carmen and split the entertainment fees with her.

Carmen burst into tears when the verdict was read and Federal Judge McGuire denied continuation of her bail. She faces a sentence of from 20 months to five years in jail and a fine of up to $5,000.

Sentence will be pronounced next week.

Carmen said she had entertained "several members of the Chinese embassy and two ambassadors" in her apartment. A prominent member of a South American embassy was mentioned.

Pressed for names, Carmen tossed her black hair and exclaimed:

"Never weel I reveal the name of a married man."

A lot of other prominent Washington diplomats, politicians, and even army officers—were perspiring and wishing for the trial to be over quickly, because of a little book found in Carmen's apartment that listed telephone numbers and named names.

CARMEN MARTIN

The prosecution, however, was being discreet—what with the good neighbor policy, and all that—and kept these names secret, at least for the time being.

Carmen is charged with having lured 20 year-old Dorothy Smitley from the path of righteousness and provided her with a sizeable clientele in the "entertainment" business in hotel rooms.

PREDICTS ITALY TO GET WORST HAMMERING IN ALL WAR HISTORY

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON—A prediction American and British airmen will give Italy "a hammering such as no country has ever received before" came today from Edward Kennedy, veteran Associated Press foreign correspondent, after a tour of war coverage unparalleled in the middle eastern and North African theaters.

Kennedy, sun-tanned, lean and hardened, holds a record as the only newspaperman who covered the middle eastern and North African wars from the time the first shot was fired by Italy in 1940 until the last German surrendered after Tunis and Bizerte fell. He gave his views after returning on his first vacation since before the war.

"Conditions are perfect for giving the Italians a terrific pasting from the air," he said. "The skies are so blue, with few clouds and no fog, that the amazing American bombsight is operating with uncanny accuracy. Distances are short, enemy resistance is light and Allied casualties are comparatively few. The United States air forces already have done a job of bombing that has been unequalled in this war.

"In my opinion, the African campaign was not a second front. It was a first front, for it kept the Mediterranian open, exposed the Axis' Achilles heel—Italy—to attack, and established a shelf of aggression 2,500 miles long from which a death blow can be launched at the Axis. A large, well-trained force is ready and they have terrific supplies."

Here are some of the thoughts of a war correspondent as he retraced a blood-stained route from Spain to the Balkans and the middle east in an interview here:

"It was in Spain that I first saw the German 88 mm. gun. And up until nine months ago it was the best gun in Africa.

"The American 90 mm. and 155 mm. guns changed all this. It was the 155's which pounded Mateur to pieces and really opened the gateway for the final American drive.

"After Spain, I went to Rome and was there when Mussolini announced he would not go into the war immediately. At that moment he reached the height of his popularity.

"The campaign in Greece was horrible. One of the worst days was an Easter Sunday near a tiny village on the River Lethe. The villagers were cooking their Easter lamb. Then the bombers came—150 of them by twos and threes, steadily for an hour and a half until there was little or nothing left.

"After returning to Egypt and moving back and forth across the desert, the turn of the war finally came at Alamein.

"The British by then had learned all of the German tricks. They had achieved the coordination of the African Corps. Man for man, they were more courageous and better fighters than the Germans."

draining Axis resources on land, but this was the first indication they had taken to the sea.

The Nazis employ heavily armed patrolboats and reconnaissance seaplanes to hunt the sea guerrillas.

The photographs purported to show Axis retribution against one "pirates' nest"—a small village bordering the Aegean. One picture showed a seaside village alight with fires set by incendiary and explosive shells.

Native vessels that attempt to elude the Axis patrol boats are shelled, it was asserted.

PRESIDENT IN NEW BLAST AT 'FOOD CZAR'

Declares Congress Must Take Full Responsibility If It Creates Position.

asked whether he would like to run the office of price administration, he answered, God forbid.

A reporter pointed out that it had been said that Davis wants control of farm prices.

Suppose he had this control, the president asked in return. What would happen to the cost of food to the consumer? That, the president said, should be our first thought.

The president said that in dealing with the food situation, those in charge had to look beyond immediate needs. While everybody favored growing all the food possible, a food czar could not accomplish this task, he added.

His discussion of the food situation came in the midst of widespread criticism of the office of price administration's food price policies and demands that Davis be given authority over price control and rationing of foods, as well as over production.

One of the most serious food problems concerned beef. With record numbers of cattle on farms and ranges, the United States nevertheless faced a growing shortage of beef, according to war food administration reports.

Both government and private livest'k and slaughter officials said shortage may become more acute before the flow of beef to market can be increased.

Packer representatives, meeting here with the food industry war committee, blamed the office of price administration and the rollback of retail prices on beef. Government reports show that marketing of cattle has dropped approximately one-third since the rollback order.

Meanwhile the house agriculture committee voted 18 to 8 to take all food rationing and pricing powers away from the OPA and place them under War Food Administrator Chester C. Davis. The food industry war committee, seeking a duration food program, decided its efforts would be meaningles suntil the divergent powers of WFA and OPA were consolidated.

The war meat board, meeting in Chicago, recommended that large packers be allowed to increase their deliveries of pork to civilians by 10 per cent during the next three months to counteract in part the reduced supplies of beef. WFA is expected to accept the proposal.

Farmers are marketing from their record number of hogs from five to 10 per cent more than a year ago, reports to the WFA showed despite recent declines in the price of hogs. The marketing of sheep and lambs, however, continues smaller than a year ago.

Meat counters in many parts of the country were said to be low on beef, with many choice cuts not available. That was attributed in part to the government set-aside order taking 45 per cent of the better cuts of steer and heifer beef for military and lend-lease uses.

Some midwestern meat packing companies reported they were unable to obtain enough beef to keep their plant in operation.

Food administration and OPA officials denied charges by Montana labor leaders that more than 20,000 tons of fresh beef was threatened with spoilage on railroad side-tracks in that state because of lack of labor to re-ice 1,000 refrigerator cars.

Theoretical Meat Control Attacked

CHICAGO —(INS)— The American Meat Institute, representing the meat packing industry, today placed before War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes a telegraphed appeal to halt "impractical and theoretical handling of meat under government regulations."

The Institute termed as "alarming," developments within the industry within the past few days and charged the regulations were "making it impossible to supply American armed forces with the meat they need."

The situation is fostering the spread of black market operations, resulting in the closing down of many meat packing firms and discouraging future livestock production, it was charged.

COUNTY PLANS POST-WAR WORK

separate agency should be established."

Sword said the county would have approximately $45,000 available annually for a construction program and expressed approval of a matching program which would require the county to put up $20 to every $80 supplied by the federal government for roads and bridges.

In the maintenance program, the county engineer said he could use federal aid for ditching, clearing, mowing, and snow removal after the war.

With Mansfield in the midst of one of its biggest street resurfacing and repair programs in recent years, city officials showed little interest in the post-war planning program yesterday. Only Mansfield representative at the meeting was John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

The city has sufficient funds now to finance its street projects and Mayor W. J. Locke pointed out today that government approval has been granted on virtually every project the city has sought since the war started.

Meanwhile, negotiations for a right-of-way for the South Main-Lexington avenue widening and resurfacing program were expected to be completed today in preparation for letting the work contract July 13.

Resurfacing of Third street in the downtown section was nearing completion today with the street opened to traffic between Main and Walnut streets.

Post-war construction of a number of toll roads similar to the Pennsylvania turnpike was forecast at the meeting yesterday by Charles M. Upham, Washington, engineer-director of the American Road Builders association. He predicted a 50 per cent increase in automobile traffic over the peak of pre-war years and added that the super highways will be needed to handle the volume.

Murray D. Shaffer of Mansfield, the department's chief engineer, said that the state's construction program included 900 projects involving expenditure of $150,000,000, much of it in and near metropolitan areas.

OFFICER BLAMED IN WOUNDINGS

Major, Wife Suffer Ax and Knife Wounds.

CHICAGO —(INS)— An army officer who recently suffered a nervous breakdown, and his wife, member of a prominent Chicago family, were reported in critical condition today of ax and knife wounds inflicted, police said, by the officer.

The victims were Maj. Anthony C. Nell, 52, and Mrs. Naomi Scanlan Nell, 51, daughter of Justice Kickham Scanlan of the Illinois appelate court.

Judge Scanlan told authorities Maj. Nell suffered a complete collapse three months ago while on duty with the 5th service command at Columbus, Ohio, and was sent to an army hospital at Indianapolis.

TO: Every American on a Payroll
FROM: The Secretary of the Treasury

SUBJECT: The New Pay-As-You-Go Method of Collecting Your Income Tax

Starting July 1st, both your Income and Victory Tax will be collected by an entirely new and more convenient method.

Under the old system, you were obliged every March 15th to pay either the full tax for the previous year, or a quarter of that amount. Under the new system, you will keep paid up from month to month.

After July 1st, your employer is obliged by the new law to withhold every month a part of your wages and turn the money into the United States Treasury as payment on your Income and Victory Tax.

Of course, the amount that your employer withholds will depend upon your pay and your exemptions. But this is the important point: For most of us, the amount withheld over a year's period will add up to the same that we're paying now—plus or minus a few dollars.

At the end of the year, we may owe the Government a few dollars or the Government may owe us. (See the tables below.)

You may have heard 20% mentioned as the proportion of your wages that will be withheld. Actually, this is incorrect. To figure the amount that will be withheld, take your total wages and subtract your allowance for exemptions and allowance for dependents; 20% of this lesser amount is the total that will be withheld.

Now please remember this: You must claim those exemptions to take advantage of them. Before July 1st, you must file with your employer an Exemption Certificate. If you do not do this, your employer will have no choice but to deduct 20% of your full pay check.

Here is how the new tax collection method will work: Let's say you are a working man earning $3,000 a year; that you are married, and have two children.

First of all, as a married man you are allowed a personal withholding exemption of $1,248, plus an exemption of $312 for each dependent (other than your wife). This makes a total exemption of $1,872 ($1,248 for yourself and wife, plus $624 for your two dependents), which is deducted from the $3,000 you earn before your tax is computed. You are thus paying tax on $1,128, of which your employer will withhold 20%, or $225.60 for the year. Therefore, in your pay envelope, after July 1, you will receive about $4.40 less each week.

In March, 1944, when you ordinarily would be faced with paying taxes on your 1943 income, you will file a return showing how much you have already paid, and how much your total tax actually amounted to. If, by that time, you have already paid more than your actual tax due, you will be given credit for the difference. If you owe more than you have paid, you will pay the difference.

Since this plan starts July 1, many wonder what happens to the tax payments they will already have made by that time—on March 15 and June 15.

For a great majority of people, here is what happens. . . . Your 1942 income tax is "forgiven" (either all, or most of it). The March and June installments which you originally paid on that 1942 income tax are credited, instead, as payments on your 1943 tax. With the result that on July 1st, with the year half gone, you have already paid tax on that half-year's income. In short, you are "paying as you go."

There is one thing more. Since this pay-as-you-go method leaves you just as much of your net income as you had before, you will probably find it possible to at least maintain your present rate of buying War Bonds. Do this by all means!

Taxes alone will not bring to the Treasury nearly enough money to finance the great invasion war that lies ahead. The war needs every cent of your money that does not go for the necessities of life.

Henry Morgenthau Jr.

Committee to Investigate Navy's Entire Oil Policy

KNOX AGREES TO PROBE OF CONTRACTS

ecretary Declares Nation Faces Shortage of Crude Petroleum.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — With Navy ecretary Knox signifying com-ete agreement with the pro-dure, the house naval commit-e decided today to order a full vestigation into the navy's oil licy in general and that depart-ent's now abrogated Elk Hills ntract in particular.

The house public lands commit-e already is investigating the k Hills matter.

The naval committe acted after nox appeared before it to ex-am the contract which he con-uded with Standard Oil of Cali-rnia for joint development of e rich Elk Hills reserve, and nich he subsequently cancelled nen the justice department ruled "illegal and invalid."

Knox told the naval committee members that the nation aced a shortage of vital crude il, with the likelihood that it ould become serious late this ear "and most certainly next ear." He emphasized his interest in conservation of reserves and expansion of sources f supply.

A statement by the secretary at condemnation proceedings in k Hills would undoubtedly in-lve lengthy litigation and the sting of a large sum to cover andard's interests in the field, incided with release of the jus-e department's report on the vy contract in which condem-tion was recommended.

After Knox's naval committee stimony, Acting Chairman ewry (D-Va) asked him: "Do u agree that we should go into is whole situation thoroughly?"

"Yes," Knox responded.

He told the committee that his is no time for two depart-nts of the government to be gaged in a legalistic dispute. hen we were told by the jus-e department that the con-act was invalid, that was that. d we rescinded. We could not ste any time over legalisms."

Knox asserted it was of "the st importance that we have an equate reserve," and added that tional policy dictates that we pand our reserve outside the ntinental United States, "in ery way possible."

Knox declared that the "choice made"—a joint agreement—s made on the grounds that satisfied the present need for and avoided posting large ms of money.

HOWARD QUITS CENSOR POST

Praised By Director Price as He Leaves To Return To Ohio Newspaper.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Because of the necessity of returning to the editorship of the Cleveland News [illegible] resigned today as [illegible] script of censorship in charge of the press division.

[illegible] Price named as acting assistant director for press Jack H. Lockhart, managing editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, a Scripps-Howard newspaper. Lockhart has supervised the press division at night since Feb. 13, 1942.

Asserting he was accepting Howard's resignation, effective July 5, only because he had no alternative, Price said:

"To Nat Howard, more than any other one individual, goes the credit for the successful operation of voluntary press censorship during the past year. He has succeeded in obtaining the cooperation and concurrence of American editors and publishers on the one hand, and of the armed services on the other I doubt whether very many on either side realize what a difficult accomplishment that was, or how much all us owe to Nat Howard."

Howard became head of the press division on May 1, 1942, replacing John H. Sorrells who was promoted at that time to deputy director.

Sabotage Blamed On Juveniles Who Want a 'Thrill'

ST. LOUIS —(U.P.)— War production has been delayed and trains have been derailed in the middle west by juvenile "thrill" saboteurs, inspired by comic books and cheap literature, Gerald Norris, head of the St. Louis Federal Bureau of Investigation office, believes.

The youthful destructionists are taking nearly as much time of FBI investigators as Axis-inspired saboteurs, he told 500 St. Louis county peace officers last night.

Admitting their juvenile desires for a "thrill" prompted them to commit the acts, boys from the age of five to 18 years, have set fire to war plants, derailed at least one train and delayed delivery of war materials. Norris said parents at work have allowed them to roam wild without supervision.

One instance mentioned by Norris was the case of a 16-year-old boy who set fires to three war plants near St. Louis, causing damage of $1,334,00. The youth said he "liked to see fires."

OFFICES BURN

Traffic Delayed as Fire Hits Airlines Headquarters.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Thousands of early morning commuters were made late for work today by a fire which swept through the offices of the American airlines and tied up traffic near Grand Central station for more than an hour.

Traffic was rerouted around the important mid-town transportation terminal and commuters attempting to leave subways through nearby exits were held back. One fireman was overcome by smoke and treated at Bellevue hospital.

THREE COUPLES GET CITATIONS

Three Mansfield couples of high school age were ordered today by police to appear in county juvenile court at 9 a. m. Monday after officers found two of the couples in Liberty park at 4:30 a. m. today. The young people taken into custody at the park gave officers the names of a third couple who had been with them and officers found them in front of a West Fourth street cafe.

The three girls were 15 and the boys were 17 and 18 years old. Their parents were asked to appear with them at the hearings next Monday.

One of the couples at the park was in a car and the other pair was located on the baseball diamond, police said.

COUNTY'S MEAT BOARD TO FIGHT BLACK MARKETS

Learns Enforcement Duties at Organization Session; Huston Chairman.

Enforcement of meat rationing provisions to outlaw black markets was outlined as the duty of the newly created Richland County War Meat board at its organization meeting last night.

C. H. Huston is chairman of the new committee which is similar to others set up in Ohio to handle the war meat program administered jointly by the county war boards and Food Distribution administration.

Other members are Clarence Stroup, Shelby R. D. 2, farmer; C. C. Beelman, county ration board chairman; Martin Touby, meat retailer; Dr. W. B. Wildcity and county health director, and Mrs. R. G. Averill.

Most immediate problem to be assumed by the new committee is the issuance of slaughter permits to persons qualified. Permits will be obtained as usual through the county conservation office but all applications will first be approved by the committee.

War meat committee members will also give special attention to insuring sanitation in the slaughtering and handling of meat and prevention of waste and conservation of meat by-products.

Harold Clifford, representative of the Food Distribution Administration told the committee that it will be its job to call the provisions of the meat orders to the attention of those persons who are slaughtering meat for sale without the necessary permits, either lack of knowledge of the order or in willful disregard of them and to report flagrant violations to the FDA.

NIP LOOSE TALK, OFFICERS TOLD

70 at FBI Conference Here Learn How To Curb Home Sabotage Attempts.

Approximately 70 law enforcement officers from seven north-central Ohio counties were told yesterday at an FBI conference at the Majestic theater in Mansfield how they can help protect the boys on the war fronts by nipping loose talk and sabotage attempts at home.

Speaking at the session were Harold H. Gorman, Columbus, of the Ohio State Safety council, and Lee Boardman, special agent in charge of the Cleveland field division for the FBI.

Gorman discussed safety as it applies to law enforcement, while Boardman told how local law enforcement agencies can assist the war program.

A movie, "Next of Kin," was shown, giving the officers an idea of the inside workings of espionage agents in the United States.

MASS EXODUS OF JEWS EXPECTED

Laval Deprives Them of Their French Citizenship.

(By Associated Press)

The German propaganda agency Transocean declared last night that promulgation of a new decree depriving an estimated 100,000 Jews of French citizenship was expected to "result in a mass exodus of Jews from France."

The order, signed by Pierre Laval, was to become effective next Sunday, under it all Jews naturalized in France since 1927 would be deprived of citizenship rights, the agency said in a dispatch broadcast by the German radio and recorded by the Associated Press.

The colors of New York city's flag—blue, white and orange—are the same which floated over Manhattan island under Dutch rule more than 300 years ago.
